VFW commander in Kiln:

Hostage negotiations could lead to WW III in Mid East

By BRENT MACEY
Art Fellwock, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Monday told the Kiln VFW Post 6285 "badly managed Iranian hostage negotiations could lead to World War III."
This was only the second time a national VFW commander has visited the Kiln post.
A crowd of some 50 people, composed of members of the post, national and local women's auxiliaries, the Hancock County service officer and guests, attended the seafood dinner prepared by the post in honor of their distinguished guest.
Fellwock addressed the group after the banquet saying the next few years are "critical times for the country."
He called on the support of the people present to unite the "plain" people to get behind the commanders of their VFW posts.

"I can take and stand in Washington but it means nothing unless I have something coming back from the members."
I would love to see this post 100, 120 or 150 percent by January. With five million of us, we can move the capital."
Fellwock spoke of the need for a strong national defense.
"Our national defense has deteriorated drastically," Fellwock said.
He mentioned his recent visit to the Middle East where he rode in the same type of helicopters used in the aborted US attempt to free American hostages. A B-52 bomber and an F-14 fighter plane along with the helicopter were all described as in "bad shape."
"If we had an emergency situation, what would happen?" Fellwock questioned.
He said the world today faces the same kind of hostile forces it faced in 1938.
"Only the names have changed," Fellwock said.
"Instead of a Hitler or Mussolini we now have a Brezhnev, a Khomani and a Castro."
Fellwock said he would urge the president-elect's administration to supply the "proper defense weapons."
"As a nation we will never be the aggressor, but we must have the nuclear warheads to knock out an approaching atomic bomb."
Fellwock continued, "I am a firm believer that people today are a Republican first or a Democrat first and then an American. The same goes with bankers and union leaders, farmers and newspaper reporters. If you put your country first then everything else will follow."

Beside encouraging greater defense weapons, Fellwock said updating pay to military personnel is second in the VFW Political Action Committee's requests to Washington.
Fellwock pointed to the Cuban refugees saying they received $16 a day for meals as opposed to military personnel who receive only $3.21.
"It's a disgrace," Fellwock said. "100,000 GI's are currently using food stamps."
"We want the military pay to be brought up to the same rate as civilian pay."
Fellwock asked a prayer for the Iranians concerning the U.S. hostages being held captive be offered at Christmas.
"If God is on our side then we can not lose," Fellwock said.
We warned however, that a "compromise may be worse."
Fellwock said that there were negotiations underway between the two countries could result in the US relinquishing 26,000,000 cluster bombs, 86,150 millimeter shells and 150 "deadly" Phoenix air missiles in agreement for the release.
"If these weapons are used against Iraq and they fall into the Saudi

Indictments lead to three arrests

By BRENT MACEY
Three men have been arrested this week by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department following earlier indictment by the Grand Jury Oct. 27.
Henry A. (Buck) Marquar, 34, of 326 N. Main Street in Waveland and owner of Super Star Body Shop on US-90 of Bay St. Louis, gave himself up to the sheriff's department at 10 a.m. Tuesday, and was arrested on a charge of "false pretense."

He was released on $1,500 bond. The indictment states that Marquar "fraudulently and falsely" obtained $3,000 from Carl Gibson.

According to the indictment, a 1977 beige with dark pin stripe Chevrolet one-half ton pick-up truck was stolen from Jay Chevrolet-Buick Inc., a Mississippi Corporation.

The indictment states Marquar changed the vehicle registration number of a "wrecked" 1977 red pick-up previously obtained from a Louisiana Insurance Company with the stolen pick-up.

The beige pick-up was later sold to Carl Gibson under false pretense that the title was "free and clear," the indictment reads.

Winford J. Hill, 39, of Shin Apartment No. 20 in Gulfport, was arrested by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department Tuesday afternoon and charged with issuing a bad check.

He was released on $1,500 bond. The indictment states Hill gave a $1,000 check to Turan-Lane Chevrolet Inc. for a 1974 El Camino "when he knew at the time of making" he did not have sufficient funds.

Reginald A. Laneaux, 23, of 501 Citizens Street in Bay St. Louis, is being detained at the Hancock County Jail in Bay St. Louis on charges of "carrying a concealed weapon after conviction of a felony."

Laneaux also faces charges of burglary of Lusch's Department Store in Bay St. Louis.

He is also being held for Arizona for parole violation.

Ball has been set at $5,000. Investigator Sandra Henley of Waveland Police Department said Laneaux was arrested Sept. 28 at the Sirlin Stockade in Waveland approximately 7:15 a.m. after pulling a gun on a friend while eating at the breakfast buffet.

August is the month, day undecided for Bay Schools opening

By BRENT MACEY
The 1981-1982 school year starting date for Bay St. Louis Municipal Schools is set to begin sometime in August.

At a Monday night meeting, School Board Member James Ginn moved the school year start either in August or September, depending on whether or not school teachers pay could be paid in August if school opened in September.

Ginn said, "I would like to have had school open in September but it was not legal according to a state statute."

Lucien Gex, the school district's attorney, said a state statute requires teacher salaries be paid at the end of the first month that school begins.

Gex said that a payment in August for the teachers would be illegal if school did not start until September.

Board President Virginia Gex, the only member to oppose the motion, said, "I felt the motion was very indefinite. It left us all up in the air. When I left the meeting I didn't know what the administration would come up with."
Gex said the motion was worded BAY SCHOOLS-Page 6A

Bay ponders regional wastewater treatment

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Bay St. Louis Council Monday took under advisement the question of whether to join the Gulf Coast Regional Wastewater Authority.

The decision was made after a presentation by a negotiating team from the Gulf Coast Authority. Supervisors James Travica and Sam Pernicari were also present at the Monday night meeting in Bay City Hall.

The supervisors were told no contract was possible with the county since they do not have a collection system or treatment facility.

The supervisors have been leaning towards joining a Waveland Wastewater Authority instead of a tri-county group. The Waveland Authority was created by a private local bill by the 1980 legislature.

Before the meeting was completed, Bay Councilman Fred Wagner took issue with statements made by the leaders of the Waveland group.

Wagner said, "A $30 per month, per household figure has been mentioned, and that is totally false."
Waveland Mayor John Longo has reported that estimates have been mentioned at a cost of up to $30 per month sewerage fee by the coast authority.

Wagner continued, "The idea about home rule was mentioned. Home rule has nothing to do with this. Sewerage problems are what every citizen in every city brought upon ourselves. Home rule is a misnomer."

Bay St. Louis Mayor Bennett has referred to a "home rule" as being the most effective way of complying with the EPA standards on clean water.

"If we can solve the sewerage problems at a more economical rate by joining the coast commission, as public WASTEWATER-Page 6A

Historical Society sets Founders Day Bazaar

By GRACE GIBSON
Historical Society
Publicity Chairman

The Hancock County Historical Society's first Founder's Day Bazaar will be held in conjunction with Woodmen of the World Building dedication ceremonies Saturday and Sunday.

Dedication of a new antiques mall, located in the Woodmen of the World Building on South Second Street in Bay St. Louis, is set for 1 p.m. Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brown have restored the facade of the building to its original design and the lower levels have been converted into the antiques mall.

The upper level, now the third floor, remains a Victorian design ballroom as it originally was, with Victorian convex tin panels of empire design on the ceiling and walls and with Victorian lighting fixtures.

During the dedication ceremony, the Historical Society will present to Mr. and Mrs. Brown a plaque commemorating the history of the building.

In commemoration of the founding of Hancock County on December 14, 1812, the Society is holding a Founder's Day Bazaar on the premises.

Holiday baked goods and crafts may be purchased there.

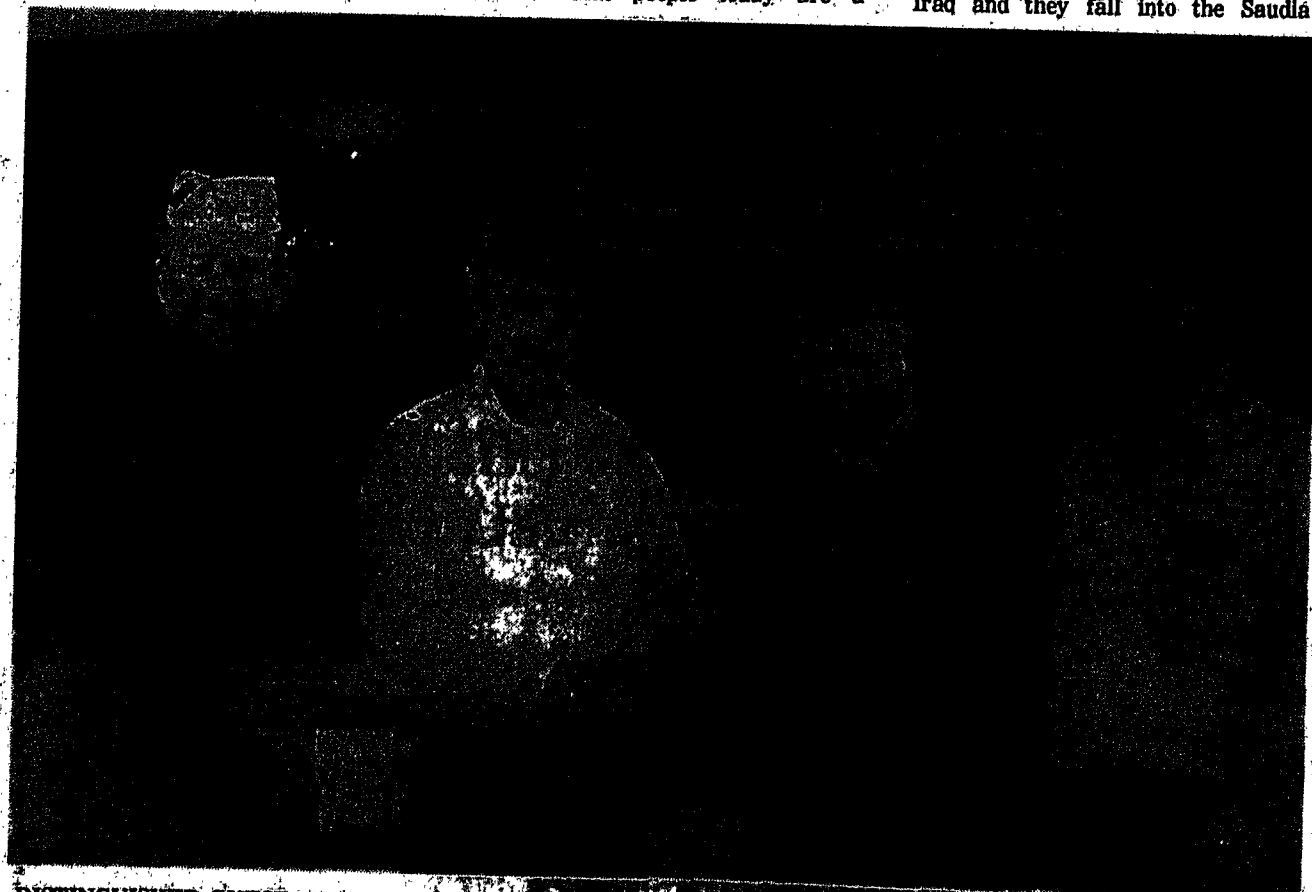

The Historical Society is a non-profit, tax-exempt corporation, and all proceeds of the bazaar will be used to publish local history.

The Woodmen of the World Building has been nominated to the National Register of Historical Places within the Historical District of Bay St. Louis.

The property upon which the building stands was part of the Madame Charlo claim and was granted to Publius R.R. Pray as administrator of the lands of the State of Mississippi for $1.

This lot became Pray's homestead lot. On October 17, 1812, he and his wife, Maria L. Pray, resorted to this land in the public square on the north side of Main Street in the village of Shieldsborough for public buildings.

Hancock County Forester

TIMBER-LINE...

By Rand Riedrich

The tree planting season is almost here and a lot of our Hancock County landowners will be planting pine trees to improve income, water quality, wildlife habitat, land values or just for natural beauty.

Whether you actually plant the trees yourself or hire it done, it's important to be familiar with the tree planting process. Here are some points I'd like to point out to you on this subject:

Planting period

1. In most circumstances trees are planted from about December to mid-March.

2. Never when the ground is frozen.

Storage

1. Keep storage time to a minimum unless the seedlings are refrigerated at controlled temperatures.

2. Protect from sun, wind, artificial heat or freezing.

3. If stored temporarily, allow for ventilation on all sides of the seedlings' containers - store in the shade.

4. Mend any holes with tape if seedlings bags or bundles get punctured.

Handling Seedlings

1. After removing the first seedlings close the bundle to protect any remaining seedlings.

2. Carry seedlings in a bucket or tray filled with wet sawdust or mud slurry.

3. Avoid excessive root pruning; or better still, don't prune at all.

Actual Planting

1. Plant approximately 600 trees per acre, unless you are planting strictly for a windbreak, erosion control, etc.

2. Plant vertically with roots spread out. Avoid "J" rooting which inhibits root development and chances of survival.

3. Plant with root collar at ground level. Roots will be exposed to elements if planted too shallow. Planting too deep will also retard development.

4. Ground should be packed around each freshly planted seedlings. (There should be some resistance when an attempt is made to pull the seedlings from the ground.)

5. After the first year, survival of 500 trees per acre or better is adequate. If less, consider spot planting or replanting. Depending on conditions, survival of less than 500 stems could result in a good stand. For example, surviving trees may be healthy, vigorous, and well-distributed over the planting site.

If you're not planting trees this year but think you might be interested in it next winter, give me a call and let's talk about it. For sure, you'll need to order your seedlings plenty early. Our annual supply sure goes in a hurry! - especially the hardwoods.

Mississippi has received a grant of $9,331,896 under P. L. 94-142 for education of handicapped children, Dr. Charles E. Holladay, state superintendent of education, reported.

Expenditures under this grant are allowable from July 1, 1980, through September 30, 1981.

"Most of this money is distributed to school districts," Holladay said, "with each district receiving approximately $190 per child served." Checks for the first quarter were mailed in the first week of December, he said.

Dr. Walter Moore, who heads the Special Education Section of the State Department of Education, indicated that many districts have already obligated amounts equivalent to the first quarter sum.

Superintendents will request additional reimbursements as they make subsequent expenditures.

THE IMPACT OF EXTERNAL APPEAL

The external appearance of your home has an important impact on potential buyers. You will never get a prospect interested unless he stops to look. Don't rely on the inside of your home "selling" it. Your prospect may be "turned off" before he reaches the front door. So look at the exterior with a critical eye.

Give the house a fresh coat of paint if needed. Replace any broken or cracked windows. Replace loose shingles. Fix the fence. Keep the lawn mowed and shrubs trimmed to give your house that "well-cared-for" look. Make sure your screen or storm door is in top shape and your wooden door is inviting with a fresh coat of paint or varnish. It is not uncommon to see a hundred dollars worth of improvements and some elbow grease increase the value of a house over a thousand dollars.

Put yourself in the buyer's shoes. He is looking for charm, comfort, location and a bargain. Give him the best show for the money.

Things are looking better for Mississippi with our Congressman Trent Lott being elected minority whip in the House of Representatives.

We feel it is a honor for a great political leader and we can all say he is from our district.

We are fortunate to have a leader like Lott in Washington.

As you all know, Congressman Lott has not gone to Washington and forgotten about his constituents back home. He and his staff have kept close contact with us in the Fifth District.

We wish Congressman Lott luck in the coming session and want him to know we are proud of his achievements.

Congratulations are in order for J. D. (Big John) Rutherford on his being named the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Outstanding Citizen and his being selected as king of Triton.

Rutherford received the Outstanding Citizen award Friday night at the chamber's annual banquet, which is a very high honor.

We do not think there is a professional chef in Hancock County who has cooked as many meals of spaghetti and meatballs as Big John and of course, he does his thing free.

The selection as king of Triton is a big honor for Big John and we all will be able to see him riding a float leading Triton down US-90, March 3rd, Mardi Gras.

For someone taking it 'easy' Big John has not slowed down very much.

We are carrying a story on how to keep your Christmas Tree green by the State Forestry Department on this page today.

We hope all of you will read this carefully, because a lot of fires are caused each year because of too dry trees or people being careless with decorations.

We hope everyone will strive to have a safe Christmas.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Homeowner bordering animal shelter objects to location

Dear Editor:

In reading the "Letters to the Editor" column in the Echo, 12-4-80, I note a letter from Mr. John E. Isom, whose address is 18 Chantilly Terrace, Bay St. Louis, who stated, "They have found a suitable location for the animal shelter, this place is far from any residential section and near other animal enclosures: cow barns and pastures and horse pastures. This would provide a safe and supervised place for stray dogs and cats."

Wonderful, now if Mr. Isom would be kind enough to tell us where this place is, I would be most appreciative. I would also like to know how much in dollars and cents Mr. Isom has invested in the location he refers to?

I also note a letter from Rev. Charles R. Johnson, pastor of Christ Episcopal Church, whose address is 912 South Beach Blvd., Bay St. Louis, in which he states that there is available a site for an animal shelter on the "Abandoned airport site which is away from any residences."

I feel fairly sure that Rev. Johnson would not issue any false or misleading statements, so I will assume that he is not cognizant of the fact that we own approximately two acres of land and a rather large red brick house located in the middle of it, immediately adjacent to "the abandoned airport," which incidentally is used as a fair grounds, a farmers' market, a place for rodeos and horse shows, a place for golfers to practice driving balls, a place that people fly model airplanes, and others also run their bird dogs. Is this abandoned?

How do I know all of this, because I built my home here in 1966 and my property adjoins "the abandoned airport."

Sincerely,
M. G. (Jack) Seuzeneau

P.S. - In reference to the letter from our "New Orleans readers" who are potential home owners and suggest a dog pound on the "abandoned airport," they should do two things: first, buy themselves a home, and second, straighten out the S.P.C.A. in New Orleans, before advising us what to do about our problems.

Civic minded citizen sends special requests to Santa

Dear Santa Claus:

By now you have made your list and checked it twice, but just in case you haven't - please see if these things are in the bag for Hancock County:

1. I would so appreciate it if the flag pole at the City-County Public Library could get a fresh coat of paint.

2. I would rejoice to see a sign placed on the beach front between Bay St. Louis and Waveland so that I, as well as my guests and tourists might know when we leave one town and enter another.

3. Our water bills have been un-bearably high. Perhaps the meter reader needs a new pair of glasses. (He could be seeing double).

4. I know you can't fill every little pot-hole because they are too numerous to count and more develop after each rain, or after the passing of heavy traffic, but would it be too much to ask that the deepest ones get filled? Hitting them can and does injure our cars and you know how costly they are these days.

5. Please give your blessings to our public officials, our police and fire protection people, to our ministers of all faiths, to our many civic clubs and all those citizens who make Hancock County such a pleasant place in which to live.

Thank you,
Joe Pilet

Theological despotism dangers reflected in Iranian government

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, entitled "An American Revolutionary Looks At Revolutionary Iran" is authored by Dr. David Tucker of the University of Chicago and supplied to The Sea Coast Echo by Public Research Syndicate in Claremont, Calif. Dr. Tucker is writing a book on Thomas Jefferson.)

By DAVID TUCKER

"An elective despotism was not the government we fought for," Thomas Jefferson addressed these words to his fellow Virginians nearly 200 years ago, just as the revolutionary war was coming to an end.

Reading Jefferson's words today, one thinks of revolutionary Iran, where an elective despotism was, as it turns out, exactly the government that the Iranians fought for in the revolution that brought the Ayatollah Khomeini to power. Reports of arrests, secret "trials," and executions marked the beginning of Iran's elective despotism.

Revolutionary "justice" has characterized it every since. The illegal detention of Americans is only one example, and a rather mild one, of the fate that the "enemies of the revolution" or of Khomeini's brand of Islam must suffer.

The despotism of Iran's rulers descends even to matters of dress. Women who peacefully march to protest these petty regulations are left to the mercy of mobs.

Purges, inspired by a lust for vengeance, have weakened the armed forces and invited the invasion that now threatens to destroy the revolution.

American might well feel that the self-immolation of the Iranian revolution is just retribution. But the spectacle of Iran ought to do more than soothe our anger. It sought to instruct us.

From the example of Iran we can learn again what Jefferson knew so well, that despotism is no less repugnant for being elective, that the mere choice of a government decent or legitimate.

Jefferson always judged the legitimacy of a government by the truths he articulated in our own Declaration of Independence, that all men are created equal, and that they are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights.

It is only because men are equal that governments must be established by the consent of the governed. But human equality also requires that governments, once established, respect the equality and the equal rights of those over whom they rule.

A government that ignores the equal rights of its citizens denies their very humanity. Whether or not it has been chosen by the people, such a government deserves the name of despotism.

But how is it that a people could "choose" such a government for itself? Here again, we can learn from Jefferson. He knew that men had to understand their own equality and respect their own rights before they would insist that government do the same.

He also knew that such enlightenment did not come easily for a people. From Europe, Jefferson once wrote his friend and former teacher George Wythe that the mass of Europeans was so mired in superstitions and ignorance that they could not be trusted to govern themselves.

It was a unique good fortune that most Americans of that time were enlightened about their equality and rights, and that superstition and ignorance did not destroy the possibility of self-government in the United States.

Jefferson understood that Americans should understand today that self-government is not possible everywhere and for all people at all times.

If men are not aware of their common humanity and their equal rights, if they are not willing to curb their passions, their selfishness, and their religious zeal, in order to respect this common humanity and these equal rights, elections will only result in elective despotism.

The example of Iran teaches us that theological despotism is a constant possibility, as destructive of the decency of civil life now as it was in Jefferson's lifetime.

Any group of men who claim to rule because they are wise, because they know all the answers, will never rule moderately.

They will claim exemption from constitutional government, so that, unobstructed by the limits that they will deem fit only for inferior men, they

Hints on keeping your Christmas tree green

It's that time of year again — when so many of us will have the task of selecting that special Christmas tree — we hope will remain green through December 25. Before purchasing a tree, be sure yours is a fresh one.

To see if the tree is fresh, shake it lightly as this will give you a clue. A fresh tree will have firmly attached but pliable needles. Beware, if any needles shake off easily. Once you get your tree home — make a new and clean cut above the base of the trunk, about two inches or so.

This will assure that the tree will take up water better than it would with a cut that is healed or hardened over. After this cut is made, the tree should be allowed to stand in a bucket of lukewarm water for a couple of hours to assure a maximum uptake of water.

Every year many Christmas trees become fire hazards due to the tree drying out. To prevent this hazard, stand the tree in water and store it in a cool shady place, preferably outside, until time to decorate.

Leave it in water even after you decorate it, and locate it away from heaters, fireplaces, television sets, or other heat sources. Check and continue to add fresh water.

There are many different kinds and combinations of chemicals recommended to increase the life of the tree. As far as the home owner is concerned, probably the easiest and most economical thing to use would be the prepackaged mixes available at the local nursery or garden center. But, if you're one of those who would like to make your own, here are some suggestions:

FIRE RESISTANT FORMULAS FOR CHRISTMAS TREES

No. 1 — 1/4 pound alum (available at drug stores), 1/2 pound baking soda, 1 gal. water. Dissolve alum and soda in water. Dip greens to be used in solution. Use a spray type appliance and spray the tree thoroughly. This gives a snowy coating to greenery.

No. 2 — 9 ounces Borax, 4 ounces Boric Acid, 1/4 tablespoon low-sudsing detergent, 1 gallon water. Dissolve ingredients in water. Dip greens and spray tree.

While the ingredients in the formulas are not basically harmful when used as directed, it is advisable to keep small children and pets out of reach of all trees or greenery whether treated or not.

HOW TO AVOID INSULATION FRAUD

Soaring utility bills have given insulation firms a big boost during the past few years, and the demand for more insulation is continuing to rise. Attorney General Bill Allain is warning Mississippi consumers that the increasing demand for the product will result in some unscrupulous companies surfacing in order to make a quick profit.

To eliminate possible fraud, the Federal Trade Commission passed a rule requiring that all advertising claims be substantiated by tests. The FTC will investigate these tests, to validate the claims. One frequent advertising complaint (One that the FTC is trying to solve) concerns the "R-value." Your money's worth in insulation is measured in "R-value." "R-value" is a number that tells you how much resistance the insulation presents to heat flowing through it. Naturally the bigger the "R-value," the better the insulation. Without the "R-value," it is impossible for the consumer to comparison shop, as there is no basis of comparison.

There are many insulation materials from which to choose—fiberglass, plastic foam-resin products, and cellulose. When deciding on which type to purchase, consider installation cost, advantages and disadvantages, prices, and safety. Cellulose insulation, for example, is made from shredded paper and obviously must be treated with a flame retardant prior to installation. Some unscrupulous companies take advantage of the consumer by skimping on or even skipping altogether the amount of the chemical used. Other companies capitalize on the demand by inflating the prices and cutting corners in the installation of the insulation.

Attorney General Bill Allain reminds consumers that when they do decide to purchase insulation remember:

—Do some research into insulation materials, features, and installation techniques.

—Always deal with reputable companies and not a door-to-door seller.

—Comparison shop for price, product, and company.

—Before signing a contract for installation make sure that both the product and the construction are warranted.

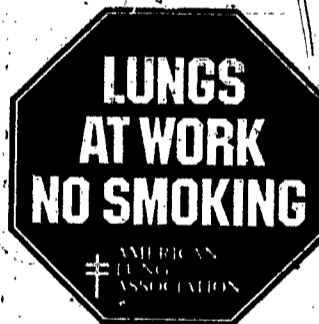

—Be skeptical of energy-saving claims. Compare potential savings information for different types of insulation.

—Check to make sure that any insulation you buy is fire resistant.

—If you buy cellulose, the only way to ensure that you've received the amount you've paid for is by a "bag" count. Get the contractor to tell you how many bags your home will need and after he's finished, count the empty (used) bags.

—Remember Never Pay before the job is completed.

Consumers Beware! and informed about consumer issues and problems in the marketplace. For additional information, contact your Attorney General Bill Allain, Consumer Protection Division, P.O. Box 220, Jackson, Mississippi 39205, (601) 961-4244.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

Some of the local businesses are having a price war on soft drinks. I said I wouldn't get in on any such nonsense, but they are beginning to hurt me. What Should I Do?

Dear WSID: Don't be stubborn. I can very well see your point in wanting to ride it out.

For you and I know full well that such so-called "price wars" are almost always either underwritten by the supplier, or made up for on the sale of other items in the store. Otherwise the businessman who engages in such an endeavor must know that its final conclusion will be bad.

It's like the quarterback who throws the ball into a mixed crowd downfield. A lot of things can happen—most of them are bad.

Sometimes price mark-downs don't catch the public attention. But, all too often they do. And you must be alert to these times, as hopefully you were with the soft drinks.

For once these kinds of things get to be important to the general public—or, on the agenda as they sometimes call it in research—they become of real concern to the merchandiser.

It is, of course, grossly unfair in the usual sense to judge a store or business on the basis of one price on one item of merchandise. But as you hopefully have also discovered the market place doesn't always act in a fair and rational manner.

In the past I have seen this syndrome operate with a number of items. Grocers have seen it with hamburger meat, pork chops, and a number of produce and dairy items—milk would seem to be the present item under scrutiny by consumers.

A few months ago it was eggs, and before that lettuce.

Cigarettes are used quite often by various stores, including service stations, as price leaders. And if the prices are low enough this single item could challenge that of the price of gasoline for smokers.

Again I sympathize with your position. And hopefully your joining into the current price war will not prolong it or cause any real harm. To not meet the existing prices could cause a loss of business for you that would take some time to recapture.

These so called promotions are perceived by some customers as being a special bonus. But most of us are painfully aware that—in the words of former Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz—"There's no such thing as a free lunch."

SERIOUS DISCUSSIONS — Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Waveland and the Hancock County Board of Supervisors indicate they are going to go for a Waveland Wastewater Authority which was formed by a private local bill by the last legislative session. Bay St. Louis Mayor Bennett has also Authority Monday. The Gulf Coast negotiating team's presentation was taken under advisement by the Bay Council. (Staff photo-Ellis Cuevas) officials we are obligated to check it out," Wagner added.

Hancock Board of Supervisor President A.A. (Dolph) Kellar at an earlier meeting of the Waveland Authority referred to the fact that waste water compliance could be done 'cheaper' with the Waveland authority.

"I think we can do it cheaper on a regional basis. I have heard a lot of 'talk' on how we could do it cheaper, (Waveland Authority), but until someone shows me how they can do it cheaper, I will not change my mind," Wagner allowed.

Donald Benson of the engineering firm of CH2M-Hill, project director of the Gulf Coast Wastewater Authority, said the sewerage increase per family would start out at $1.50 in 1981 and increase to $3.20 by 1987.

Benson added, "We have calculated that over the coast a savings of 24.4 percent can be saved by doing the waste water treatment on a regional basis."

The four other Council members did not make any comments other than wanting to table the proposal until the next meeting on Dec. 16.

Victor Frankiewicz Jr., Bay St. Louis resident and planner with the Bureau of Marine Resources questioned the team about the estimated regional cost of $123 million.

Frankiewicz stated, "In the 201 studies in 1977 for Hancock, Bay St. Louis and Waveland a figure of $1.6 million was estimated for upgrading the systems. Now it is up to $3.5 in your figures. Why the big increase?"

Benson replied there were 'defencies in the previous reports'.

The negotiating team indicated that the Waveland Authority would not be able to secure federal funds if they went on their own.

The tri-county authority's figures on costs were based on a 75 federal and 25 local monies.

Five of the 12 Coastal political subdivisions now intend to join the Gulf Coast Wastewater Authority, according to attorney John Corlew.

Jackson County, Pascagoula, Moss Point, Ocean Springs and Pass Christian have all committed themselves, according to Corlew.

Corlew stated, "The five adopted resolutions of intent to enter into a contract with the authority and will do so by mid-January."

Sandford Morse, authority director, said that Gulfport and Biloxi are still considering and, "Felt confident that they will."

Pray died in 1840, and Sam White became administrator of his estate. In 1846 the land was part of a lot sold by White to John L. Henderson.

Then in January, 1849 ownership passed to John B. Toulme, the first mayor of the Village of Shieldsborough, and remained in his estate until his death.

On March 20, 1909, R.W. Toulme, council commander of the Cedar Grove Camp of the Woodmen of the World Insurance Society, and A. Hart, committee chairman, said they planned "to build a Hall for use of serving refreshment on occasions of balls and other forms of entertainment."

And so the Woodmen of the World Hall came into being.

While the insurance company owned the building, however, only the upper level had public use. The lower level was used by the managers of the Woodmen of the World Society.

Some of the senior adults in this area recall the dances held in the ballroom and the beautiful dance floor, with various bands from all over coming to play.

Quite a few recall Ziggy, the banjo player, who entertained quite often there.

Besides being used for plays and theatrical presentations, the Catholic nuns used the building as a two-room schoolhouse for a while after the Catholic school burned.

The building never stood idle long. Used for a time by the Mississippi National Guard, its upper level was later used as a dancing school taught by Dot Russell.

And later a clothing manufacturer ran his business from the building.

Most recently, it housed The Sea Coast Echo, Hancock County's oldest newspaper, until the Echo's recent move to newer quarters a half-block away on Court Street.

With the opening of the Antiques Mall, the Woodmen of the World Hall will now combine the flavor of the past with the present time - a most enchanting idea.

Anyone interested in making donations of holiday baked goods or crafts to aid the Society may bring them to the Historical Society's booth at the Woodmen of the World Building on Friday.

Someone will be there to accept these donations and express thanks, for helping to make the Founder's Day Bazaar a success.

Governor names Ronnie Artigues to coast board

Governor William Winter has announced the appointment of Ronnie Artigues of Bay St. Louis as a member of the Coastal Zone Management Committee.

The appointment was announced at a Jackson news conference last week. The committee will serve as an advisory board to the Department of Wildlife Conservation and the Bureau of Marine Resources on the operation of the Coastal Zone Management Plan.

Artigues was one of ten people appointed by the governor.

In announcing the appointment, Winter said, "I am pleased to have Mr.

Artigues accept a position on the Coastal Zone Management Committee."

"His presence on this committee will help insure that proper goals are set and attained. I am especially pleased to have a person of the caliber of Mr. Artigues accept this position," the governor said.

very cumbersome.

"We worked hard for two months on this question and I felt the motion was so indefinite I voted against it," She said.

The teachers are currently paid at the end of every month starting with the first month of the school year.

The District had previously changed the traditional starting date in a September meeting from the middle of August to after Labor Day in September. This change meant teachers would miss August's monthly pay check in 1982.

The motion drew complaints from representatives of teacher's unions at an October meeting who were unaware of the board's actions in September because the starting date issue was not listed on the agenda.

At the October meeting, the representatives complained later starting date would not only mean a gap in regular monthly payments in 1981 but would also result in a later ending date in the school year, thus hindering summer job opportunity for both teachers and students.

The teachers also said the later starting date would result in students finishing the first semester after Christmas vacation, 'not sound educational practice.'

According to Ginn, "The exact starting date will depend on how much time is needed by the administration to get the payrolls out."

"The first month is always the hardest because the administration has less time to prepare," Ginn said.

Ginn said that this year's starting date Aug. 17 presented enough time but that a decision to open even later in the month would have to be made by the administration.

Ginn said School District Superintendent J.D. McCullough's recommendation of an exact starting date would be made to the board some time in February or March of next year.

Weather Report

Most of Mississippi will have a wet December, with near average temperatures, according to the Mississippi Weather Outlook distributed by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

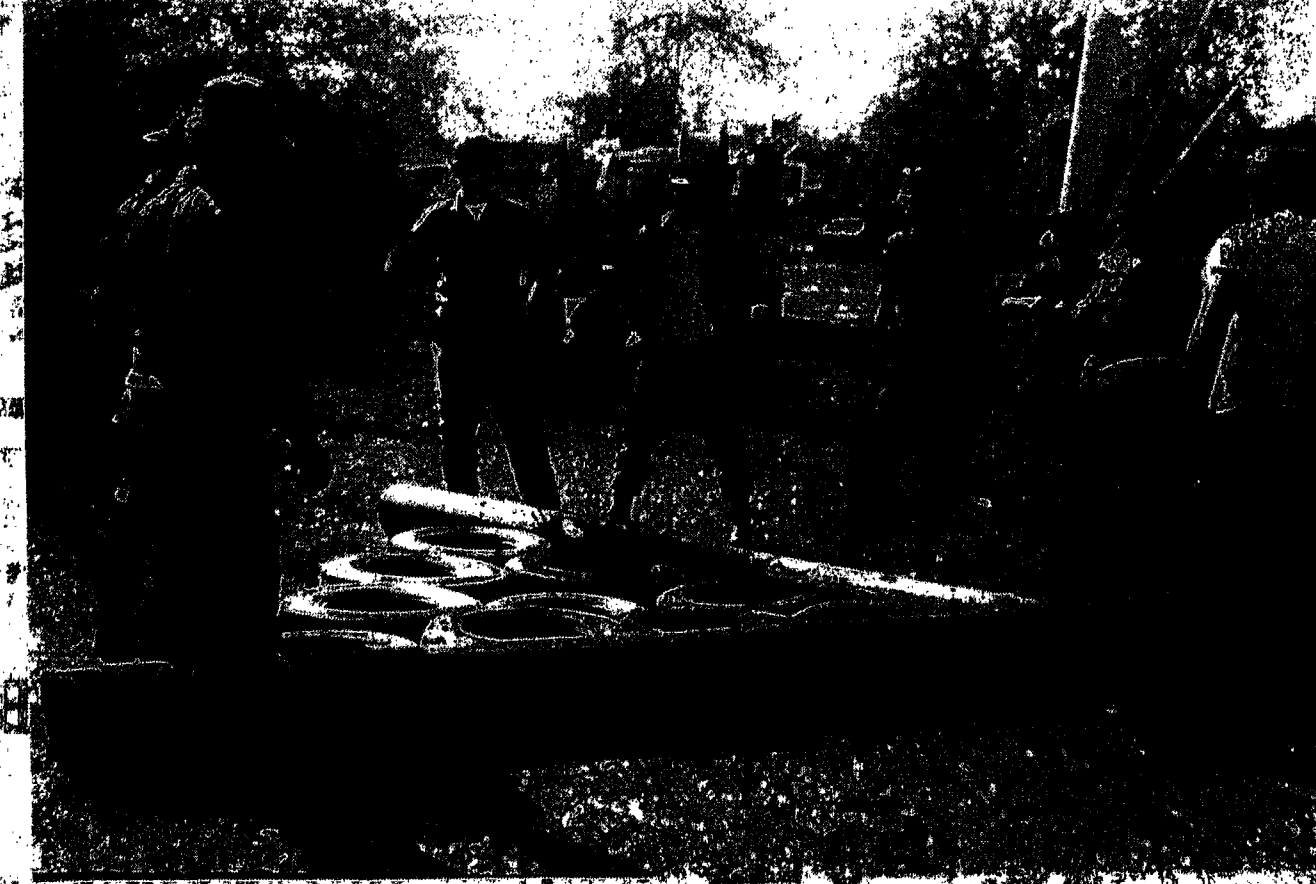

High temperatures during this month normally fall from the upper to low 50s in the north and the mid 60s to low 70s in the south, according to meteorologists at the Mid-South Farm Weather Service in Stoneville who prepare the reports. Northern lows drop from the upper 30s to near 30 degrees and southern lows from about the low 40s to the upper 30s.

Most of Mississippi gets between five and six inches of rain in an average December. The higher than normal rainfall probably will come from a series of low pressure centers crossing the state, the weather specialists say. Cloudy, damp weather associated with these centers will keep days cool and nights mild.

High pressure centers, however, may cause fair, cold weather followed by a warming trend. Although Mississippi temperatures will be near normal, weather patterns will cause day-to-day variation, specialists add.

More rain than usual may make it difficult for farmers to finish outside chores. Farmers must take advantage of every clear spell.

Temperatures should be high enough to allow some forage growth, but extensive rains may make low-lying pastures boggy.

Guardsmen get set to stand the tent upright, the final stage.

The first Revlon girl and star model of the 1952 "Fire and Ice" campaign, Dorian Leigh, is said to have been the inspiration of the Holly Golightly character in Truman Capote's "Breakfast at Tiffany's," and is also the sister of Suzy Parker, another famous cover girl.

Reared by repressive parents who would not tolerate smoking and drinking, Dorian Leigh spent much of her adult life rebelling against her strict upbringing.

A third generation Texan, she married during her sophomore year at college and had two children before she was twenty.

Within a few years her poems were published in The New Yorker, she received a degree in mechanical engineering and a teacher's diploma in machine shop practice, and went to work in an aircraft industry.

From these unlikely beginnings, at 25, she went into modeling at the suggestion of a co-worker. The Conover agency accepted her immediately and her first assignment landed her on the cover of Harper's Bazaar. Literally overnight she became a top model.

The copy from the famous Revlon, "Fire and Ice" ad: "For you who love to flirt with fire... who dare to skate on thin ice..." might well exemplify Dorian Leigh's own life. With her success came a long series of affairs, four husbands and five children, who were usually left in the care of a variety of nurses or with their grandparents.

She jetsetted with the likes of Swifty Lazar, movie mogul Sam Spiegel, Emilio Pucci, Buddy Rich, Coco Chanel, Diana Vreeland, Richard Avedon, Harry Belafonte, Charlie Chaplin and Charles Revson.

A long term affair with the Marquis de Portago, who died at an early age in a racing accident, resulted in the birth of an illegitimate son who became a heroin addict and committed suicide at the age of 21.

She went to Paris to open the first modelling agency in Europe where she discovered the greats—Twiggy, Verushka, Wilhemina—but after a merry-go-round of affairs, squabbles, bed investments and changes in the business side of modeling, Dorian was virtually forced to give up her agency.

In an unusual ending for a celebrity autobiography, Dorian Leigh takes a new reckoning of her tempestuous existence, turns her back on her former lifestyle, and finds liberation through Christ.

One constant in her life has always been her love of cooking. She often whipped up gourmet meals for her famous friends; for a time she owned her own restaurant outside of Paris, and has been a chef at other restaurants.

Today she lives in upstate New York where she has a food business that specializes in supplying pates and en croute dishes to delicatessens and food shops.

COAST MARCH CHAIRMAN — Jean Larroux meets March of Dimes National Poster Child Missy Jablonski while attending a regional meeting for prevention of birth defects. Missy, 5½, of St. Louis, Mo., was born with Spina Bifida.

March of Dimes fundraisers set "Preventing birth defects is a challenge everyone should be concerned about," says Jean Larroux, Mississippi Gulf Coast Chapter chairman, who recently attended a regional meeting in Nashville, Tenn. sponsored by the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation.

Accompanying Larroux were Mrs. Penny Alexander, Mrs. Mary Bankston, and Don Hartfield.

This year marks the 25th anniversary of the polio vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas Salk with MOD grants.

Since then, the MOD has turned its attention to birth defects, the nation's most serious child health problem.

Each year more than 3,500 babies are born in Mississippi with physical or mental damage due to birth defects.

"If everyone could see how severe the problems are, I'm sure the whole community would join in," Larroux says.

"One of the key things I learned at the meeting was the increasing need to awaken today's generation about birth defects which can be prevented. Among these are birth defects linked to smoking, excessive drinking while pregnant, poor maternal nutrition, and inadequate prenatal care."

In Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, George, Stone, and Pearl River, the six counties known as the Mississippi Gulf Coast Chapter, many events will be coordinated this year.

The Mothers Marches will be held Sunday, January 18 and Walk America, a new approach to the Superwalks, will be held April 25.

Watch for details of these and other events which support the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation.

Keesler presents 'Messiah'

The 27th annual production of George Frederick Handel's 'The Messiah' will be presented in Chapel One Dec. 11 at 7:30 p.m. and again on Dec. 14 at 2:30 p.m.

Rehearsals, under the direction of Adam Ortiz, have been underway since September with the chorus numbering more than 100 voices. Dress rehearsal with the Gulf Coast Symphony is scheduled for Monday.

Ortiz, music coordinator for the Keesler chapels and chairman of the music department at the Jefferson Davis campus of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College, has conducted 'The Messiah' many times.

Handel's 'The Messiah' was completed in just 24 days in 1741 and first performed in Dublin, Ireland on April 13, 1742 with Handel himself conducting; thus a tradition began.

Both Keesler presentations of 'The Messiah' are open to the public.

March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation grants to hospitals, schools, and health care institutions emphasize prenatal care and maternal nutrition to protect maternal and newborn child health.

USM offers unique graduate programs

The Board of Institutions of Higher Learning has approved three new graduate programs in the area of Educational Research at the University of Southern Mississippi.

The three include a master's degree in research and evaluation, Specialist's degree in educational research and a doctoral minor in educational research.

"We have found that the job prospects are very good for people trained in this area," said Dr. Paul Peddicord, chairman of the Department of Research and Foundations. "USM is the only institution in the South offering a degree program in this area," he added.

The master's degree is designed to provide salable skills in measurement, research and computer analysis among other areas.

No undergraduate coursework prerequisites are listed, but applicants must have a 2.75 (on 4.0 scale) grade point average for the last two years of undergraduate study.

Students must also have made a score of 800 on the aptitude section of the Graduate Record Exam (GRE).

The program is 30 semester hours including either a thesis or a special problem in educational research.

The specialist's degree is designed for those individuals not pursuing a doctoral degree or for persons in doctoral study seeking a specialization in research in addition to their major areas.

Requirements are: 3.25 on previous graduate work, 850 on aptitude section of GRE and completion of a master's degree. Depending on whether the student completes a thesis or a field problem, 27 or 30 hours are required for the specialist degree.

The doctoral minor prepares a person to initiate and direct institutional research in college, private or public agencies and in school systems. Other uses of the minor include teaching applied statistics and research methods and service as a consultant.

A minimum of 18 semester hours are required.

"With accountability programs in the schools, with the evaluation of federal programs that is required and the research and evaluation of curriculum, these programs at USM should prove valuable to administrators, principals and teachers," said Peddicord.

For additional information contact Dr. Paul Peddicord, Southern Station Box 8206, Hattiesburg, Miss. 39401.

NEW STATE IMAGE — Mrs. William Winter, Mississippi's first lady, displays her "It's Yours in Mississippi" t-shirt developed as part of the state's new advertising and marketing program.

Tourism Division offers positive image for state

At a gala premier held in November, "It's Yours in Mississippi" was introduced, as the theme the state will be using to project a positive image for Mississippi.

Developed for the Division of Tourism of the Mississippi Department of Economic Development by Maris, West & Baker Advertising Agency, the theme will be a selling tool for tourism promotion as well as industrial development.

Improving Mississippi's image is a key factor in the new advertising and marketing campaign. William T. Hackett, executive director of the Department of Economic Development, believes an enhanced image will result in substantial growth for state tourism and industry. "I think the campaign will have significant impact," Hackett said.

"Instilling pride in Mississippi and informing our citizens about the state's attractions are other important aspects of the program," said George Williams, director of the Department's Division of Tourism.

The distinctive "It's Yours in Mississippi" logo will be made available to people in both the public and private sector. "We're encouraging the logo's use in their promotions and advertising," Williams said. "We hope all Mississippians will become salesmen for the state."

Surveys indicate that people still travel despite the energy crisis and economic conditions. "We've got to attract those tourists on the 'tank of gas' vacation plus persuade our own people to spend their vacations in Mississippi," Williams said. Therefore, target market areas for the first phase are Mississippi and the surrounding states.

The campaign, "It's Yours in Mississippi," is highlighted by well produced, fast-paced television commercials featuring new music and expert photography.

Four-color print ads and outdoor advertising will support the media effort between January and June 1981. With the use of color brochures and other information, selling Mississippi will take on a whole new look, according to Williams.

Mississippi farm product sales reach $1.7 billion Sales of farm products in Mississippi amounted to $1.7 billion in 1978, according to the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce.

The total is based on preliminary results of the 1978 Census of Agriculture, which counted 54,306 farms in the State, with average sales of $31,446; an average size of 256 acres; and average value of land and buildings of $174,616.

Comparison with totals from the last previous census (1974) should be made with caution because of significant improvements in data collection procedures in 1978. Bureau officials believe that the improvements in data collection had a much greater effect on the count of farms than on measures of agricultural production. The improvements are discussed further below.

While Mississippi farm product sales climbed 39 percent from $1.2 billion in 1974, farmers' expenses also grew, with feed purchased for livestock and poultry up from $255.8 to $317.4 million in 1978; hired labor from $1.6 to $131 million; gasoline and other petroleum products from $59.3 to $94.4 million in 1978.

The total energy cost for Mississippi farms amounted to $108.7 million. The market value of all machinery and equipment went up 60 percent from $877 million to $1.4 billion four years later.

Crops brought a return of $962.1 million, 56 percent of Mississippi's total farm sales, compared with $716.7 million in 1974. Soybeans, the leading crop in acreage, were harvested from 3.7 million acres, producing 75.4 million bushels, compared with 2.1 million acres and 40.9 million bushels in 1974. Cotton placed second with 1.2 million acres producing 1.3 million bales.

Hay was the third ranking crop with 635,300 acres yielding 1 million tons. Other crops were rice, 223,700 acres; corn, 121,200 acres; and corn for silage or green chop, 61,400 acres. Pecans grown on 15,600 acres produced 2.3 million pounds.

Livestock and their products brought a return of $58.9 million, compared with $230.3 million in 1974. Mississippi's total cattle and calves inventory of 1.6 million on 36,676 farms was down from 2.3 million in 1974, but the 938,300 head sold from 35,177 farms was ahead of 860,900 sold in 1974.

Four percent of those sold were fattened on grain and concentrates. The inventory included 845,600 beef cows, down from 1.2 million in 1974.

A total of 1,377 farms sold $85 million in dairy products. The inventory of 97,000 milk cows was down from 110,800 four years earlier.

Sheep and lamb inventory on 223 farms was reported at 6,200 head, with 4,800 shorn, yielding 27,500 pounds of wool, and 3,400 head sold.

A total inventory of 330,200 hogs, 49,500 for breeding purposes, was counted on 10,349 Mississippi farms, with 432,800 reported sold of which 86,000 were feeder pigs. Approximately 1 percent, 96 farms, reported 500 or more hogs and pigs, accounting for 36 percent of the State's total inventory. The overall 1978 inventory was up 90,000 head from the 1974 total.

The horses and ponies inventory on farms increased from 26,100 to 30,900.

Sales of poultry and their products amounted to $386.7 million, compared with $266.7 million in 1974. A total of 9,924 farms reported an inventory of 9 million chickens 3 months old or older, compared with 11.7 million four years earlier.

Hens and pullets of laying age were reported at 7.8 million compared with 9.9 million in 1974. There was a 26 percent increase in broilers sold, 225.8 million compared to 178.8 million in 1974.

Other measures of Mississippi farms also portrayed gains as the average value of land and buildings per acre climbed from $379 to $682; total cropland went from 8 to 8.5 million acres; and irrigated land increased from 161,600 to 318,400 acres in 1978.

Additional facets of Mississippi farms as depicted in the 1978 Census of Agriculture include the following:

—Ninety-one percent or 49,244 of the 54,306 farms were operated by individuals or families, 3,896 by partnerships, and 973 by corporations, of which 681 were family held.

—Ninety percent of the operators owned all or part of the farms they operated, with 35,245 fully owned, 13,840 partly owned, and 5,221 operated by tenants.

—Farming was the principal occupation of 21,465 or only 40 percent of the operators, while 32,841 spent most of their work time at a non farm occupation.

—Seventy-nine percent of the operators who reported place of residence lived on the farm they operated.

—Mississippi farmers were younger on the average than in 1974, 51.7 years compared with 53.6.

—Some 3,685 farms, 7 percent, were operated by women, as revealed by a questionnaire asked for the first time.

—Farm product sales of $100,000 or more were recorded by 8 percent or 4,375 farms; 7,778 sold $40,000 or more; 10,871 had sales of $20,000 or more; and 43,435 had sales of less than $20,000.

Figures published are for farms qualifying under the following definition: Any place from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products were sold, or normally would have been sold, during the census year. Published dollar values have not been adjusted for changes in price levels.

The improvements previously mentioned were in two areas. The first was an improvement in the mailing lists used to send farmers their census report forms. The second was a door-to-door canvass of sample households in rural areas. The results of this direct enumeration, when combined with the count by mail, allowed the Bureau to identify additional farms in the State which would have been missed under procedures used in the 1969 and 1974 censuses.

The Bureau estimates that the direct enumeration sample added 10,161 farms (averaging 70 acres and with average sales of $3,847) to the mail census. Although characteristics of the additional farms are tabulated in the report for the State, they are not included in the totals published for each county.

Had 1978 procedures been used in the last previous census (1974), Bureau officials estimate that between 9,400 and 12,900 smaller farms would have been added to the 1974 Mississippi total. The estimated State total would have been between 63,020 and 66,520 farms in 1974 instead of the 53,620 enumerated under the procedure actually used. A detailed description of the 1978 Census of Agriculture program compared with earlier censuses is available from the Agriculture Division, Bureau of the Census, Washington, D.C. 20233.

Copies of the preliminary report, 1978 Census of Agriculture: Mississippi, and each of its counties are for sale by Customer Services Branch, Data User Services, Bureau of the Census, Washington, D.C. 20233, or any District Office. The price is 25 cents a copy.

Money Talk

By Norine Barnes

One of the biggest fears homeowners encounter is not being able to make a mortgage payment. If it could mean losing your home.

But if, for any reason, you find yourself unable to make a payment, the first thing to remember is not to panic. Second, don't procrastinate—take immediate action to correct the situation.

As soon as you realize you may have to miss a payment, contact the company that loaned you the money to buy your home and discuss the problem with them.

Be prepared to explain why you fell behind in your payments and to list your current resources, such as dependable income, wages, union or disability benefits, welfare payment, VA benefits, Social Security, savings accounts, and your spouse's or children's income.

Include insurance policies which you may temporarily borrow against.

Also, try to suggest a plan that will enable you to bring your mortgage payments up to date. You may have to sacrifice a second car or luxury item like a boat, but you will have to be realistic about your needs and your financial abilities.

Although it will be up to you to develop a plan to remedy the problem, the lender may assist you in several ways.

Your monthly mortgage payments may be temporarily suspended or reduced by increasing payments over a longer period of time. (This is known as granting forbearance.)

Or, the lender may rework your mortgage so that the interest rate does not increase but the unpaid principal balance is increased by the amount you are behind.

If your home mortgage was insured by HUD-FHA, the mortgage may be assigned to HUD, which would then become the lender, and help you work out a repayment plan.

As a last resort, the lender may advise you to sell your home or sign your property over to the lender to prevent foreclosure and protect your future credit record.

Foreclosure is a costly procedure that most lenders like to avoid, but don't count on this. If you are unable to come up with a solution, or fail to keep your agreement, you may lose your home and your credit rating.

The lender is not the only agency that can help you out of this tight spot.

Several agencies are available to help you get back on your feet by supplying information and financial counseling to prevent future problems.

If your lender is uncooperative and your home loan was insured by HUD-FHA, you may call them for assistance.

Avoid middlemen who will offer to speak to the lender on your behalf, usually for a fee. Communicate with your lender directly.

If you borrow money to pay the default, you may find yourself in deeper financial problems, with just one more debt to pay.

It is important to find the cause of the problem and learn to cope with it—not to use stop-gap efforts like borrowing more.

Degree takers reported

The candidates include Ms. Adele Louise Crudden, 511 Waveland Ave., Waveland, and David Nathaniel McDonald Jr. of Bay St. Louis.

Ms. Crudden will receive a graduate medical degree and McDonald will take a BS in engineering.

CHRISTMAS EVE ON SESAME STREET—Everyone is out looking for Big Bird, who in turn is out looking for Santa Claus. And since it's too early to open the Christmas presents, what's a bored and hungry Cookie Monster to do? Look for cookies, what else. It's all part of the fun when the Emmy Award-winning "Christmas Eve on Sesame Street" is rebroadcast this holiday season on Mississippi ETV at 8 p.m., Wednesday, December 24.

American advertisers spend some $35 billion each year but may be missing a large part of their market because of their portrayal of women in ads, says a University of Mississippi professor who has studied women and advertising.

Dr. William J. Lundstrom, Phil B. Hardin Professor of Marketing at Ole Miss, thinks advertisers should pay more attention to the different social attitudes of women consumers.

"In a recent study, we

The Bay-Waveland Humane Society has available for adoption a three-month-old, black male bob-tailed wirehaired terrier.

Advertisers missing mark in messages aimed at women divided female consumers into two groups - the liberal or modern woman and the traditional one - and saw that the characteristics were very different between them," he said. "Some of their attitudes, such as those about the place and role of women in society, were so different that it became obvious if an advertiser tried to appeal to both groups with the same message, the ads would be ineffective."

In developing advertising campaigns, many companies and agencies take into account such factors as age, race and sex, but few of them further define their market on the basis of attitudes and personality traits.

When Dr. Lundstrom studied the two groups of women, he found differences in attitudes on such topics as pride in the home, women's social influence, women's place in society and cooking interests.

He found, for example, that the women with non-traditional attitudes were more likely to consider themselves creative cooks than were other women. "Advertising for a food or cooking product aimed solely at the traditional woman would hypothetically be oriented to the wrong lifestyle segment," he said.

He recommended that advertisers study attitudes and personality traits to better define the audience they are trying to reach.

"If the advertisers don't begin finding out about the consumer's attitudes, then the incorrect definition of their market will minimize the effectiveness of the ads and therefore hurt the movement of their products," he said.

"We found that these modern women found advertiser's portrayals of women to be offensive while the traditional women were neither pleased nor displeased by it," he said.

"To change this, the advertisers should better define women's attitudes and

Survival rate high Cancer Society says

Forty-one percent of cancer patients will survive at least five years after treatment, the American Cancer Society reported today.

In the 1981 edition of its annual publication, "Cancer Facts and Figures," the Society asserts that about 268,000 Americans - one third of all who will get cancer this year - will survive for five years or more. When normal life expectancy is taken into consideration (factors such as dying of heart disease, accidents and diseases of old age), 41 percent of cancer patients will survive.

About 2 million of the 3 million Americans who are alive with a history of cancer can be considered to be cured, the Society says. Five years without symptoms following treatment is generally accepted as ample time to consider a cancer patient cured. However, some patients can be considered cured after one, others after three, and in some cases have to be followed for much longer than five years.

The Society adds that many more people could be saved... "About 134,000 people with cancer will probably die in 1981 who might have been saved by earlier diagnosis and prompt treatment," says Facts & Figures. This means that with our present knowledge of the disease, as many as one-half of cancer patients could be cured.

The 1981 edition of Facts & Figures clearly demonstrates why there is such an overwhelming concern about prevention, early diagnosis and treatment of cancer.

Despite the progress against cancer since the early part of this century, the total numbers of new cases each year continue to rise. "In the '70's, the publication states, "there were an estimated 3.5 million new cancer deaths, over 6.5 million new cancer cases, and more than 10 million people under medical care for cancer."

In a section of the prevention of the disease, the Society points out that "most lung cancers are caused by cigarette smoking, and most skin cancers by frequent overexposure to direct sunlight."

In discussing occupational and environmental factors, Facts & Figures includes examples of cancers that could be prevented such as bladder cancer among workers in the dye industry and lung cancer in asbestos workers - especially those workers who also smoke cigarettes.

The most optimistic trends continue to be in the area of diagnosis and treatment. Because of this, the American Cancer Society's education program focuses on six priority sites: lung, colon-rectum, breast, uterus, oral cavity and skin. The program explains how people can help protect themselves against cancer and stresses the importance of careful attention to possible warning signs of the disease through self-examinations techniques and regular medical examinations.

The report also describes 14 cancers which used to be considered largely incurable. It states that "today they are being cured in many cases, predominantly because of chemotherapy advances," and lists the following as examples of this progress: acute lymphocytic leukemia, adult myelogenous leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, histiocytic lymphoma, Burkitt's lymphoma, nodular mixed lymphoma, eging's sarcoma, Wilms' tumor, rhabdomyosarcoma, choriocarcinoma, testicular cancer, ovarian cancer, breast cancer and osteogenic sarcoma.

Facts & Figures is recognized as a standard reference work in its field. It is an annual publication of the American Cancer Society which presents a comprehensive picture of cancer in the United States today.

USM sociologist on fisheries body

University of Southern Mississippi sociology professor Dr. Thomas Panko recently attended a meeting of the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council (GMFMC) in Tampa, Fla.

Panko is a member of the council's Scientific and Statistical Committee, charged with evaluating management plans for fisheries in U.S. coastal waters.

The committee also formulates policy in accordance with the Fishery Conservation and Management Act of 1976. The council devises management plans to achieve maximum yields for fisheries as well as insuring the social and economic interests of commercial and recreational fishermen.

Panko is the only sociologist on the council composed of representatives from the states of Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas.

Policies governing such international considerations as fishermen from the Soviet Union, Japan and nations around the Gulf of Mexico, who have found fishing near or within the U.S. 200 mile limit very productive.

"On the domestic scene," said Panko who has been with the GMFMC for three years, "policies are being formulated to prevent conflicts between competing fisheries. "An example would be shooting incidents between shrimpers and crab fishermen in Louisiana."

THE March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation supports public health education programs for schools, community agencies, hospitals and health departments. These programs seek to prevent birth defects and improve the outcome of pregnancy.

Many pay unnecessary taxes, Extension economist feels

Many taxpayers pay more taxes each year than they should because they don't claim investment credit on qualifying property used in their businesses.

"Investment credit is 10 percent of the cost of the property. It's one of the best tax management tools that exists," says Dr. Johnnie Sartor, leader, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Agricultural Economics Department.

If a taxpayer acquired new or used tangible depreciable property to use in his business and placed the property in service during the tax year, he may qualify for the investment credit. Investment credit, like all other tax credits, reduces taxes owed dollar for dollar.

For example, if the taxpayer's liability (taxes owed) is $2,000 and the investment credit is $1,500, the taxes owed will be reduced to $500, he explains.

To qualify for the full 10 percent investment credit, the useful life of the equipment must be seven or more years. With a useful life of five to seven years, only two-thirds of the 10 percent will apply; with three to five years, one-third will apply; and with less than three years useful life, the property will not qualify for investment credit.

Examples of qualifying property include trucks, tractors, combines, automobiles used in business, power tools, fences used with raising livestock, paved barnyards, water wells for livestock and poultry, storage bins and purchased livestock for breeding.

The tax law now allows investment credit on single-purpose livestock or horticultural structures. This includes pig parlors, milking parlors, poultry houses, greenhouses and other single-purpose buildings.

The investment credit may not exceed the taxpayer's tax liability. The maximum allowable credit is $25,000 plus 70 percent of the taxpayer's liability above $25,000 (for married couples filing jointly).

Investment credit not used the year of purchase may be carried back three years and then forward seven years.

"There is one exception to the carry back and carry forward of excess investment credit," he says, "and that is with the investment credit allowed under the reforestation program recently signed by the President."

There are no provisions for carry back and forward of excess investment credit under the reforestation program. Form 3468 should be used for calculating investment credit.

"Let's assume a farmer purchased a new $20,000 tractor January 1980 to use in his farming operation. He estimated the tractor to have a useful life of 10 years. The tractor purchase will qualify for the full 10 percent of the purchase price toward investment credit. This will be $20,000 x .10 equals $2,000."

"If this farmer owes $2,500 in taxes, his taxes are reduced to $500. If he had estimated the life of the tractor to be more than five years but less than seven years, his investment credit would be two-thirds of $2,000 or $1,333.34. Had he estimated the useful life to be more than three years but less than five years, his investment credit would be one-third of $2,000 or $666.67," Dr.

Sartor says.

Any taxpayer with questions on any phase of income taxes should call his local internal revenue Service office or the toll-free number in Atlanta, GA, 1-800-241-3868.

Livestock slaughter during October totaled 232,000 head, weighing 71,775,000 pounds liveweight, the Mississippi Crop and Livestock Reporting Service announced today. This is 19,300 head and 9,486,000 pounds more than the same month last year.

The October slaughter consisted of 26,400 cattle weighing 22,926,000 pounds liveweight; 2,500 calves weighing 1,369,000 pounds liveweight; 203,100 hogs weighing 47,480,000 pounds liveweight. The average liveweight per head of animals slaughtered was cattle 867, calves 543, and hogs 234 pounds.

Commercial production of red meat totaled 44,659,000 pounds during October, 10 percent above September and 11 percent above October 1979. The January-October 1980 red meat production totaled 379,995,000 pounds 18 percent above 1979.

UNITED STATES
Commercial red meat production for the United States during October 1980 totaled 3.58 billion pounds, 1 percent greater than October 1979, according to the Crop Reporting Board.

January-October red meat production at 32.1 billion pounds was 4 percent greater than last year. The 1980 accumulated production changes by individual components were: Beef, up 1 percent; veal, down 10 percent; pork, up 10 percent; lamb and mutton, up 8 percent.

Commercial red meat production includes slaughter in Federally Inspected and other plants, but excludes animals slaughtered on farms.

Kill days for October included 23 weekdays (one a holiday) and 4 Saturdays, the same as October 1979.

COMPARING OCTOBER 1980 WITH OCTOBER 1979:

BEEF production at 2.03 billion pounds was up 4 percent. Head kill at 3.22 million was up 6 percent, while average liveweight declined 3 pounds to 1,064.

VEAL production at 37 million pounds was unchanged. Calf slaughter at 258 thousand head was up 1 percent, and average liveweight increased 2 pounds to 244.

PORK production totaled 1.49 billion pounds, down 4 percent.

PRC ladies 4-4 in basketball

Women's basketball at Pearl River College is certainly on the up-swing.

With only a Thursday night encounter against Hinds Junior College and a Saturday visit to Meridian remaining before the Christmas break, the Lady Cats have a chance to win as many contests before the semester break as they did during all of last season.

"We are steadily improving," said Billy Holmes, the girls head coach. "And in basketball that is exactly what you want to do - improve right up to play-off time."

The Lady Cats are 4-4 on the year with all four losses coming against the league's best competition. "We have played excellent ball and lost to the best four teams in the league," Holmes said.

Holmes, in his first full year as the PRC girl's head master, said he was pleased with the performances of everyone on the team. "We run and gun and play a lot of people," Holmes said, "and we are exciting."

The Lady Wildcats are averaging 73 points per contest, just about what it took last week to beat Southwest and Gulf Coast in division play. Monday night the PRC girls ran out of steam late in the game and gave way to perennial power East Central.

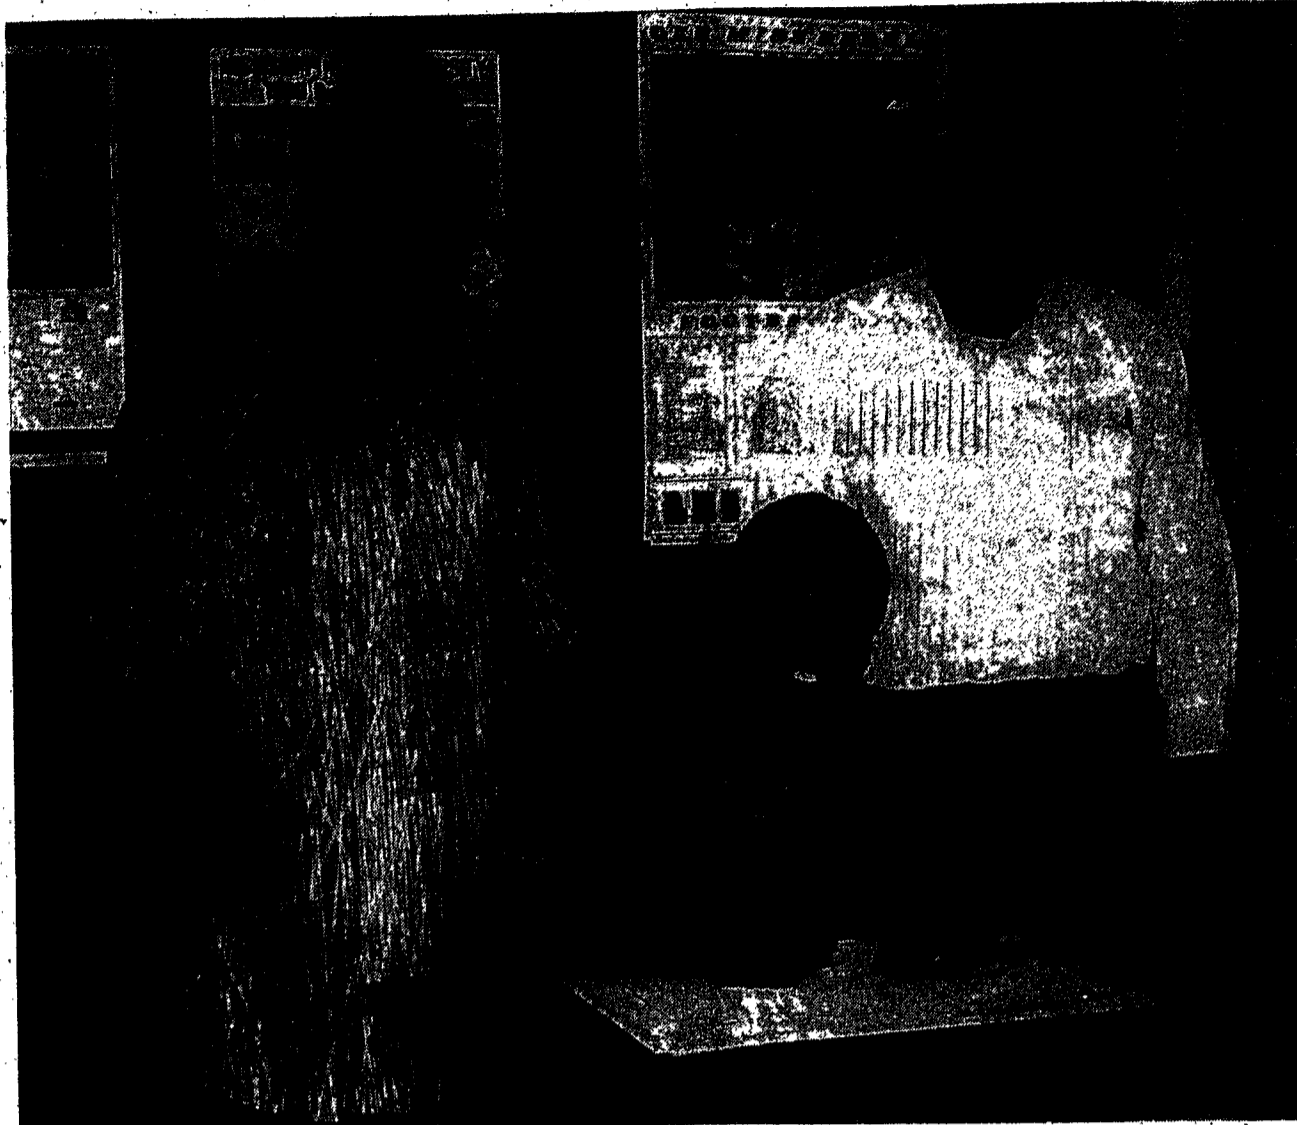

In the East Central contest Shelly Dedaux scored 11 and Lawanna Johnson 10 to pace the Lady Cats.

In last Thursday night's contest against Perk here at home there was very little disappointment in the She Cats performance.

Taking a 28-25 lead with 4:33 remaining in the first half on a corner shot by Glenda Gardner, the Lady Wildcats never relinquished the lead in upsetting the Gulf Coast squad. It was the first victory by the PRC girls over Gulf Coast in anyone's memory.

The Lady Wildcats stretched their one-point lead at the 4:33 mark of the first half to three points, 38-35, at the half. Douglas' steal and driving layup with 12 minutes left pushed the lead to 48-43 and a hoop by Harrell with 2:33 left made the score 70-64. At that point the six point lead dissipated and that led to the exciting finish.

Hookfin scored 24 points, Harrell 20 and Jennifer Ralston 12. Dedaux added and mine.

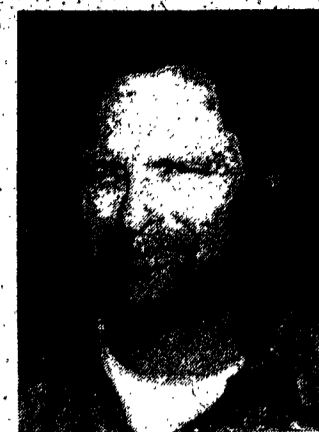

SCHOLARSHIP AWARD—Earl Conway, senior at Pass Christian High School, signs a four year full scholarship with Mississippi College, Clinton, MS, to play football starting in the fall of next year. Conway will join his brother Warren, now a sophomore at MC, also awarded a scholarship for his football ability. Earl Conway has this year also been named Burger King All Star defensive lineman and to the All Pascagoula River Conference team. Looking on at the signing is his mother Mary Conway and Pass High head football coach Robert Lumpkin. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

Two Crow enters Toughman contest

James Two Crow, of Bay St. Louis, is entered in the Toughman Contest to be held in the Coast Coliseum on Friday and Saturday.

Two Crow is not a stranger to brawls in the area, for in his own words, "I just like to fight." He will be among 16 heavyweights in the tournament, fighting for a first prize of $1,000 and a chance to compete in an international tournament in the Silver dome, Pontiac, Mich. in October, 1981.

JAMES TWO CROW

light heavyweights will also be competing for a $1,000 first prize. Runnersup in each of the weight division will each receive $250.

This is the third year of Toughman competition, and the event has been seen on The Phil Donahue and Real People network television shows.

50-day season extends through Jan 31

Duck season opens Saturday

Yancey said that state hunters should expect a fair season, despite the fact that the fall flight will be off some 17 percent from last year due to a severe drought in the prairie breeding grounds of Canada. If severe winter weather prevails up the flyway and we have good water conditions in the Delta we could have a good season.

He indicated that because the expected fall flight will be off, this year's flight of ducks will be primarily adult birds who have made the southern migration at least once before. These birds will probably be very wary, he said, and hunters would benefit by having their blinds well concealed and using extra decoys.

"Duck hunters do have an excellent set of regulations this year which will allow them four drake mallards in the daily bag," he said. "Mississippi will again be the only state this year to permit waterfowl hunting until Jan. 31. This was part of a commitment we obtained from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to stabilize regulations for a five year period in our area."

Yancey explained that state and federal waterfowl hunting regulations are set up annually to permit hunters to take only the surplus portion of the fall flight of waterfowl without harming the spring breeding population that will return to Canada and other parts to nest.

Department law enforcement chief Philip Strong said that a vigorous enforcement effort will be mounted this year in cooperation with agents of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to insure that hunters comply with the various waterfowl regulations.

Strong reminded hunters that shotguns must be properly plugged and incapable of holding more than three shells and that both state and federal duck stamps must be signed.

In addition Strong said that shooting hours extend from one-half hour before sunrise until sunset. Waterfowlers utilizing wildlife management areas should carefully check shooting hours since some of these shut down earlier during the day.

Agency officials say the point values for waterfowl this year include: canvasback, 100; hen mallard, wood duck, black duck, hooded merganser and redhead, 70 points; drake mallard, ring-necked duck, mottled duck, goldeneye, bufflehead and ruddy duck, 25 points; pintail, gadwall, shoveler, blue and green-winged teal, lesser scaup and wigeon, 10 points.

Hunters are allowed birds totalling 100-points daily. The daily limit is reached when the point value of the last bird taken is added to birds already harvested and the total reaches or exceeds 100-points. The possession limit is two legal daily limits.

Bolivar and Washington counties west of Highway 1 will be open Dec. 13 through Jan. 4.

Hunters may take either a buck or a doe south of Highway 18 and west of Highway 61 in Adams, Amite and Claiborne counties. Yucatan Island will not be open. Hunting dates are Dec. 13 and again on Dec. 20. Still hunting only.

Beginning on Dec. 27 the hunting of deer with dogs will again be allowed in many areas of the state. The hunting season digest should be checked for these regulations.

PRC Wildcats lose three in basketball

Pearl River College's Wildcats came close on three different occasions last week but could not manage a single basketball victory.

The trio of setbacks put the Wildcats overall record at 2-9 with Hinds Junior College invading the PRC Coliseum here Thursday night.

Last Thursday the Billy Holmes led 'Cats dropped a heartstopping 75-74 decision to arch-rival Gulf Coast and then dropped a 65-61 contest to Panola, Texas in Baton Rouge on Saturday night. Monday night was another close call for the Wildcats as East Central edged the PRC 85-81.

"We're doing a lot of things right," said Holmes, about his group who has dropped their last nine straight contests. "We are now playing disciplined on offense but our defense is still very weak."

The shooting percentage has improved drastically over the past two weeks, as evident of the close ballgames against some of the league's best competition. "We are more selective and organized," Holmes said.

In the Gulf Coast game last week in the PRC Coliseum the Wildcats led 43-36 at intermission. With 3:07 remaining in the contest the 'Cats were still up 70-69, but that count was their last margin of safety.

Soon after, Steve Johnson hit a jumper and the Bulldogs took the lead for the night. It was the third consecutive division game against the Bulldogs.

Renee Brown was the big gun for the 'Cats as he pumped in 28 points, 20 of them coming in the first half. John Fells added 17 and Landry Cage and Barry Arcement added 10 each.

Pearl River played Panola, Texas in a preliminary contest to the LSU-Tulane shootout in Baton Rouge last Saturday. Again the Wildcats came close but lost 65-61 to a very good Texas team.

John Fells had a good night shooting for 24 points while teammates Brown and Arcement added a dozen each.

Monday night at Decatur the PRC roundballers scored 81 points but it was four points short as the Warriors edged out a division win.

Fells netted 25 points and Brown added 20, Landry Cage 18 and Steve Nunn 12 counters.

USM offers community health course

The first master's level program in community health nursing offered in Mississippi for registered nurses begins next month at the University of Southern Mississippi, a news release from the University recently stated. Community health nursing will prepare professional nurses for advanced practice in rural, suburban and urban communities. In response to an increasing demand for higher education in community health, the School of Nursing Graduate Program added the specialized area to the curriculum, the release reported. Political, social, economic, environmental, ethical, and legal constraints on health care systems will be critically analyzed in the program. Major emphasis will be on primary patient care and the nurse's role in human ecology and health systems to improve health services in communities, Gina S. Giovino, CHN coordinator, said.

The CHN program will require one calendar year of academics and a clinical practicum for a degree. Registered nurses with a baccalaureate degree in nursing can contact the USM Graduate Program or the CHN coordinator for information or advisement. The toll-free number in Mississippi is 1-800-642-3007. Out-of-state nurses can call area code 601-264-4211 or write: USM School of Nursing Graduate Studies, Southern Station Box 5095, Hattiesburg, MS 39401.

Mrs. Winter touched on the impact on a family when one of its members suffers a vision-threatening problem. She also encouraged those present to become more involved in the fight to save sight by supporting Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness.

The meeting, which was attended by some 69 members and guests, had as its theme "Light One Candle." This idea was carried out in effective decorations and in the report of the Director, Mrs. Edith Mullin. The president, Mr. Gerardus Hundscheid also underscored the idea in his opening remarks to those assembled. Serving the Society for the coming year will be the officers elected at the dinner meeting: Gerardus Hundscheid, Hattiesburg president; Mrs. Rickey Koon, Jackson vice-president; financial development, Mrs. William Ashford, Jackson - vice-president program; Art Nabers, Port Gibson vice-president; safety, Mrs. Stanley Wilson III, Jackson secretary; and Miss Mary Ann Elkin, Jackson-treasurer. Miss Frances Ann Galloway of Jackson will coordinate public information for the Society.

The Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness is a non-profit, voluntary health agency affiliated with the National Society to Prevent Blindness.

Waveland Mormons set annual Ward meeting

The Waveland Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints will hold its annual Ward Conference Sunday at the Ward Chapel, corner of Nicholson and McLauren in Waveland.

The event is a milestone for the local congregation, marking the first such conference since the former branch was organized into a ward Nov. 2.

Recent increases in membership and ability to meet the other necessary activity requirements prompted the granting of 'Ward' status by the church's Hattiesburg Stake, the equivalent of a diocese in the Mormon Church.

Daniel Sonos was 'called and sustained' as the first bishop of the new ward, and he will conduct Sunday's proceedings under the direction of Lawrence M. Udall, Hattiesburg stake president.

Fund drive date set for disabled

Saturday, Dec. 13, is scheduled as the first annual 'Shake a Bucket Day' for the Mississippi Association of Children with Learning Disabilities, Marion Dailey, chapter president, said.

Dailey said the association will be at Our Shopping Center and also in front of TG&Y in Bay St. Louis starting at 9 a.m.

"All members will be contacted and asked to take part. This is an important function in the life of this organization. Each of us need to do their part to make this drive a success," Dailey said.

The chapter will also have a rummage sale in Trapani's parking lot across from Our Shopping Center from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Dailey added.

"Anyone having anything to contribute to this rummage sale can call the chapter president at 255-9267 or bring it to Trapani's parking lot on Saturday morning.

"Mark it with the price you want to sell it at," Dailey said.

A Dec. 15 meeting will be held at Scaffidi's Wheel Inn, Highway 90 Bay St. Louis at 6:30 p.m., Dailey said.

"In order to be festive for the holidays we are planning a dinner. The cost will be about $4.50 per person. All teachers, members and any other interested persons are cordially invited.

"We also shall honor the school superintendents and principals from Hancock County," she added.

Dr. Basil Gaar, Professor and authority on Learning Disabilities from the University of Southern Mississippi will be the VIP, (Very Important Person), for this month.

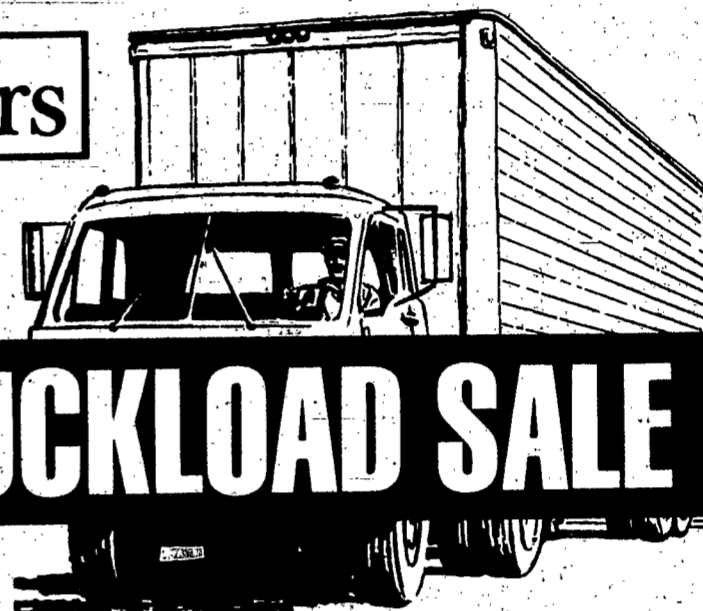

Gaar also has a summer resident camp in Caldwell, Texas for children with Learning disabilities.

For more information call Dailey at 255-9267.

Utility cut-off procedures set

For the fourth consecutive year, the Public Service Commission has issued an Order placing restraints on jurisdictional electric and gas utility company procedures for disconnecting service during the months of December, 1980 through February 1981.

Public Service Commission Chairman Norman A. Johnson, Jr., and Commissioners D. W. Snyder and Lynn Havens said the Commission Order is intended to prevent human suffering that might be brought on by the termination of electric and/or gas service in any extremely cold weather condition during the winter months of 1980-1981.

The Commission Order requires:
(1) All electric and gas utilities to notify affected parties at least twenty-four (24) hours prior to disconnecting service when the cut-off was not requested by the customer.

(2) Notification of customers in writing prior to disconnecting electric or gas service.

(3) That gas or electric service should not be shut-off after 2:00 p.m. during the work-week or after noon on Friday, or a day proceeding a holiday, unless the utility is prepared to reconnect service by 8:00 p.m. the same day, at the normal reconnection charge.

(4) Utilities to waive one Service Reconnection Charge per year.

The Commissioners emphasized that the provisions set forth in the Order should serve to alleviate much human discomfort and hardship that might exist without adequate energy for heating purposes, during a period of continued cold weather conditions.

Governor Winter teaches class in Lamar County

Governor William Winter, who has identified education and economic development as his top legislative priorities for 1981, recently taught three classes at a rural Lamar County high school.

Between classes the governor spoke informally with students and teachers to "gain a first-hand look at the problems and opportunities of public education in Mississippi. What I learned at this and other schools across the state will assist me in developing a legislative package to substantially upgrade the quality of education in Mississippi," Winter said.

The governor commented that he will push vigorously for enactment of a statewide system of public kindergartens, a compulsory school attendance law, and other education proposals adopted by the Governor's Education Study Committee headed by Tupelo businessman Jack Reed.

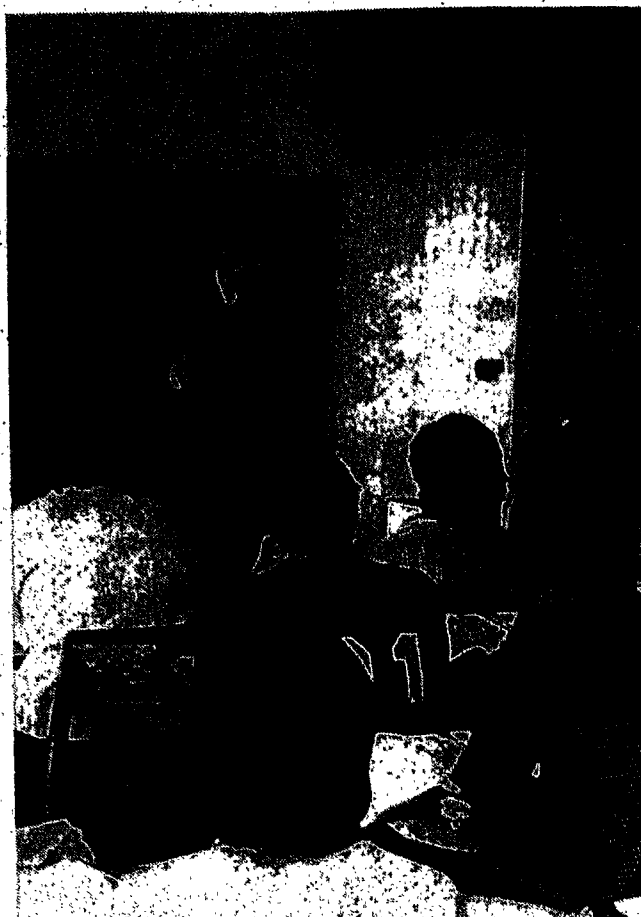

Winter, who plans to teach classes at several schools across the state in the next few weeks, said that participating in classroom instruction and talking with students and teachers dramatizes his efforts to upgrade educational opportunities. He noted additionally that it permits him to gain a fuller understanding of Mississippi's educational needs.

Winter said he believes the 1981 legislature will act favorably on the proposals of the Education Study Committee, including the proposal for a phased-in system of kindergartens that Winter said is of considerable importance in providing "a solid basis for educational achievement. This will help insure that our children can compete for and hold the increasingly technical jobs that we want to attract to Mississippi."

Winter noted that Mississippi recently lost a major industrial prospect because "there was a perception by the management of that industry that we provided inadequate training in Mississippi."

Stressing that economic development is largely dependent on the quality of education offered in the state, Winter said, "From a practical economic standpoint it is vital that we gear up our system of education to reduce the too high percentage of undereducated people in our state. Too often our undereducated citizens find it difficult to obtain a job and many of these people swell our already over-burdened penitentiary facilities or end up as welfare recipients. We need to provide them an opportunity - an opportunity which they want - to become productive jobholding citizens who can contribute to the economic prosperity of our state. We cannot be satisfied with simply getting along," Winter continued. "We must improve our educational and employment opportunities."

GOVERNOR TEACHES—Governor William Winter teaches high school government class at Oak Grove High School in rural Lamar County.

New musical course offered by USM

A curriculum leading to the Bachelor of Music Degree with an emphasis in music industry has been developed by the Department of Music at the University of Southern Mississippi.

The four-year program including a nine-week internship in the music industry will begin in the Fall of 1981. The emphasis will include courses from the Colleges of Fine Arts and Business Administration.

"Students seeking careers in any phase of music, whether teaching, performance or music industry need to become more aware of the business aspects of music," said Dr. Norbert Carnovale, program coordinator.

Five courses dealing specifically with the music industry will be taught.

Money Talk By Norine Barnes

It's important for women to understand how to manage money now for peace of mind and greater security in the future. These facts tell why.

Did you know that women live about eight years longer than men? Once a woman reaches the age of 65, she can, if she's average, look forward to living about 17 more years. That's a long time on retirement pay.

Did you know that more women are unmarried these days? In just 20 years, the percentage of single women has almost doubled. In the past 15 years, the divorce rate has more than doubled. These women must rely on themselves when it comes to money.

It's a fact that one out of every four widows is under the age of 45. After a husband's death, a family's income, including all benefits, is generally reduced by over 40 percent. That's including the working income of the widow.

Can a woman count on a pension from her own firm if she works? Not really. A government report says that women are less likely than men to be covered by private pensions.

The sum total of all these facts is that it's more likely a woman will be on her own when she is older. She will be responsible for her own finances. That is why it is essential for her to make financial plans for retirement.

These days, a social security payment to a woman averages about $200 monthly. Think about it in this time of inflation: what expenses would that amount cover?

How should a woman begin to make financial plans? There are many choices. For starters, she could start a long-range financial program using investments that are designed to produce income in the future. Maybe some stocks, bonds or mutual funds. A mutual fund pools the money of many people and invests it in different securities. Mutual funds have many different financial goals.

A woman can aim for most any combination of income, safety, or growth of capital she wants.

If she works for a firm that doesn't have a retirement program, she may open an Individual Retirement account, or if a woman is self-employed, a Keogh plan can be started. Both these long-term retirement plans let you invest money for your later years and give you tax benefits right now, and in the future too.

When is the best time for you to start thinking about your future financial security? The answer is easy. There is not time like the present, whether you are married or single, a homemaker or career woman.

A stockbroker, mutual fund representative, insurance agent or financial planner can help you put your plans into action.

Birth defects strike one of every 12 infants born each year in the U.S. says the March of DIMES. One infant is born every other minute with physical or mental damage.

 Veterans News *****

Improvements in the way the Veterans Administration helps disabled veterans are "most important since the program was established in 1943," Max Cleland, administrator of veterans affairs, said recently.

Cleland was referring to recent legislation which gives his agency broad new authority to improve vocational rehabilitation for disabled veterans. The law also increased GI Bill education allowances.

The Congressional action, approved by the President Oct. 17, 1980, permits VA to go beyond its traditional role of preparing disabled veterans for the job market. It also helps place them in jobs suited to their individual disabilities.

For those veterans disabled so severely that employment is unfeasible, VA can now provide "independent living" counseling and support. A pilot program to be launched next fiscal year will offer special help for up to 500 severely disabled veterans per year with the goal of helping them live in the community with a reduced level of help from others or independently.

The mandate also strengthened the Labor Department's Disabled Veteran Outreach Program designed to help veterans to find work. A nationwide network of veterans who are specialists in employment counseling, now working at state and local employment offices, will be expanded to 2,000, and 25 percent of the new specialists in each state will be located at VA facilities.

Other program modifications made possible by the "Veterans Rehabilitation and Education Amendments of 1980" include:

—Receiving higher payments of the GI Bill while at the same time receiving many of the services of the vocational rehabilitation program for veterans eligible for both vocational rehabilitation and the GI Bill.

—Increasing monthly allowances by 17 percent;

—Increasing the basic eligibility period from nine to 12 years after a veteran leaves service. During the period the veteran normally receives 48 months of payments and services, but extensions are permitted in both categories for veterans with serious employment handicaps;

—Receiving higher institutional training allowance rather than on-the-job rate for veterans training in general agencies;

—Having individual written rehabilitation plans leading to jobs or independent living developed for each veteran by VA. The veteran may appeal if he does not agree with VA's plan for him.

—Receiving training allowances for incarcerated veterans, with certain exceptions;

—Having the VA pay room and board in lieu of subsistence allowance for a veteran pursuing rehabilitation at a special facility;

—Reimbursing employers by VA for certain necessary added costs in developing on-the-job training programs for disabled veterans;

—Having the VA conduct research and special projects related to rehabilitation, developing on-going professional training for rehabilitation personnel, and recruiting an advisory committee of service connected veterans and personnel distinguished in the general and special fields of rehabilitation.

—Having some 26,000 handicapped veterans are currently receiving VA vonational rehabilitation services. More than 839,000 were trained in the program. In fiscal year 1980, VA expenditures in vocational rehabilitation exceeded $90 million.

Guidelines on these programs for VA field offices are being developed at VA Central Office in Washington.

Former servicemen and women who received less than honorable discharges are reminded that the 15-year limitation on applying for review of such discharges has been waived until April 1, 1981, giving these veterans an additional six months to apply.

Applications for a discharge review, or for correction of a veteran's records, may lead to eligibility for VA benefits in cases where former servicemen and women were previously ineligible.

VA benefits eligibility is based upon discharge from the service under conditions other than dishonorable. It should be remembered, however, that upgraded discharges do not lead automatically, in all instances, to eligibility.

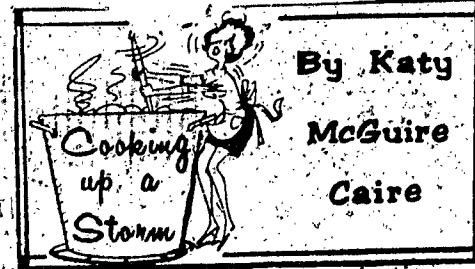

For example, discharges awarded as a result of unauthorized absence, in excess of 180 days can result in ineligibility for VA benefits regardless of discharge review board action.

Boards for the Correction of Military Records, or VA itself, may assist veterans to overcome this restriction if the veteran can show compelling circumstances in extenuation of such an absence.

Discharge Review Boards and Correction Boards are maintained by the Army, Air Force and the Navy, and applications for such reviews may be obtained from any VA regional office and from national veterans service organizations in each community.

Applications and a free information package on the program may also be obtained by writing to DOD-Discharge Review, P.O. Box 21, St. Louis, Mo. 63166. Veterans should include their service number and branch of service.

Parties here, parties there, everywhere parties bring the ever-present problem of what to serve that's just a little different, at least, from what everyone else is serving.

Just take a tip from Betty Moore, whose "Lobster Mousse" has long been her specialty of specialties for buffet suppers, elegant luncheons, and even as the star of the cocktail table, served with toast or crackers... and she adds, shrimp substitutes well and elegantly for lobster, so here's Betty Moore's

LOBSTER (OR SHRIMP) MOUSSE

- 1 can tomato soup
- 3 small packs Philadelphia cream cheese
- 2 Tablespoons gelatin (plain)
- ¾ cup finely chopped celery
- ¾ cup finely chopped green pepper
- 2 Tablespoons grated onion
- 1 large can lobster, shredded (or 1 cup shrimp, chopped)
- 1 cup mayonnaise

When the mixture begins to thicken add the remaining ingredients and season with salt, hot pepper sauce and Worcestershire to your taste.

Pour into mold, refrigerate several hours or so. Then turn out on a platter on a bed of lettuce, garnish with olives, green and ripe, or whatever other embellishments come to your mind.

Garnish with the mayonnaise, also, or serve separately, as an extra touch, especially at Christmastime, you may wish to add minced parsley or green onions to the mayonnaise.

And, Betty warns, "This is a very rich dish!"

100th BARGE LAUNCHED—This 120 foot barge was the 100th to be launched by Bergeron Marine at Port Bienville, last month. The first barge to be launched at the Hancock County facility was on April 14, 1978. (Photo by Bob Hubbard)

Bergeron launches 100th barge at Port Bienville facility

A significant event occurred recently at Bergeron Marine when the barge, "CMS-563", slid down the launchways at the company's Port Bienville Facility. The 120' x 30' x 7'-0", steel deck barge built for Central Marine Service, Inc., New Orleans, was the 100th vessel constructed at the Mississippi yard. Production began at the forty acre site located in the sprawling Port Bienville Industrial Park near Pearlinton, Mississippi, in the spring of 1978. On April 14, 1978, Bergeron Marine launched its first vessel, the "CMS-434", a 110' x 30' x 7'-0", deck barge, also owned by Central Marine Service, Inc.

Initially, the company's operations at Port Bienville were confined to new construction. In addition to the new construction of a wide range of barges, Bergeron Marine's facilities were expanded and now include a specialized LASH barge repair and renovation facility. This facility, now a very important part of Bergeron's Mississippi operation, is believed to be the finest of its kind in the United States for the repair and reconditioning of LASH barge barges. Currently ranked as the largest employer within the Port Bienville Industrial Park Complex, company officials are predicting a steady increase in employment as the company continues to grow and expand the scope of its operations.

In commenting on the launching of the 100th vessel, William T. Bergeron, President of Bergeron Industries, Inc., stated: "We are pleased with the progress we have made at Port Bienville as evidenced by delivery of the 100th vessel from that facility. Bergeron Marine has grown to become an integral part of Bergeron Industries, Inc., and will continue to play an important role in enabling us to attain our overall corporate objectives."

Bergeron Marine, Inc., is a wholly owned subsidiary of Bergeron Industries, Inc. The parent company has shipbuilding and repair facilities at Braithwaite, Louisiana, on the Mississippi River near the Port of New Orleans, with general offices at St. Bernard, Louisiana.

CANCER Answerline

American Cancer Society

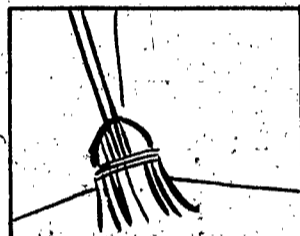

A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to keep you informed about cancer.

Question: "What exactly does 'at high risk' mean?"

ANSWERline: Genetic and environmental risk factors have been associated with several of the most common forms of cancer. These factors have been identified after detailed study of vast numbers of health histories—those of cancer patients and of people who did not have cancer. Examples of genetic risk factors are a family history of rectal polyps in the occurrence of colorectal cancer; fair complexion related to skin cancer; family history of breast cancer or of stomach cancer which appears to increase the probability of developing cancer in those particular sites. SPECIAL NOTE: This does not mean that everyone with a genetic factor is going to develop cancer—it merely means that such people should be aware of their slightly increased risk and have periodic health checkups.

Among environmental factors, cigarette smoking is the greatest, accounting for more than 70 percent of the 100,000 new cases of lung cancer in the U.S. annually. Other environmental factors are those found in the workplace—substances such as asbestos, creosote, coal tar, arsenic, pitch, etc. Your local Unit of the American Cancer Society will be glad to provide more detailed information.

Per-capita cigarette consumption in 1979 fell to the lowest level since 1957.

It is said to be bad luck to bring your broom from your old house to your new one.

Kosciusko Mississippi to celebrate patriot

The small rural town of Kosciusko in Mississippi will conduct a celebration early in 1981 commemorating the role that an early Polish patriot had in building of this nation. The event will be Kosciusko's Polish American Heritage Celebration January 17, 1981, with an address by Secretary of State, The Honorable Edmund Muskie.

William Winter, Governor of the State of Mississippi, originated the idea as a tool for commemorating the work of General Thaddeus Kosciuszko in the Revolutionary War.

The date, January 17, is the 200th anniversary of the Battle of Cowpens in South Carolina, an event which marked the last major battle of the war. Kosciuszko, who was the engineering officer for the revolutionary forces, designed fortifications for the Cowpens battle.

Kosciusko, Mississippi is the only incorporated city in the United States named for this great Polish American patriot.

The planned address by Secretary of State Muskie is scheduled to cap a week of activities commemorating this community's ties to the Polish people.

Several Polish organizations of the country are being invited to participate. Governor Winter has extended a personal invitation to all chief executives of the United States to attend. The Roman Catholic Church is being invited to attend and take an active role.

Diplomatic representatives are expected to attend, along with noted Polish American professional athletes, movie stars and artists.

Numerous committees in Kosciusko totaling over five hundred (500) people are presently working to make the event a very meaningful one.

The town of Kosciusko was created as an outgrowth of a Choctaw Indian Trading Post on the Natchez Trace, a historical trail stretching from Natchez to Nashville. This was the route of early traders between New Orleans and the Tennessee-Kentucky frontier, and was Andrew Jackson's route home after he beat the British in the War of 1812.

Kosciusko, the town, with only a very few citizens of Polish extraction, took its name at the insistence of William Dodd, first representative from the area in the State Legislature. Dodd's father had served in the Revolution and came home with praise for the Polish Engineer.

In the early 1930's, the Polish Ambassador to the United States stood on the high school grounds and dedicated a mound made of dirt from Poland. That mound has since been moved to a newly constructed centennial park at the site of an old spring where Andrew Jackson is said to have watered his horses.

Anyone interested may contact Kosciusko's Polish American Heritage Committee, P.O. Box 696, Kosciusko, MS 39090, 601-289-2981.

Kindness often returned greatly magnified

"I expect to pass through this life but once. If, therefore, there be any kindness I can show, or any good thing I can do to any fellow being, let me do it now, and not defer or neglect it, as I shall not pass this way again." These lines have been credited to a number of men, including Sam Walter Foss, the great poet. Wordsworth wrote, "The best portion of a good man's life is his little, nameless, unremembered acts of kindness."

"Kindness is a language the dumb can speak, and the deaf can hear and understand. We may scatter the seeds of kindness and courtesy about us at little or no expense. Some of them will fall on good ground and grow up into good feeling towards us in the minds of others, and all of them will bear the fruit of happiness in our own bosoms."

A little bit of kindness, when we are dejected and discouraged, is long remembered, and many times is greatly magnified because we are dejected and discouraged. Here's a short story that touched me as I read it:

"One hot summer day in the early 1880's, a young medical student was going from house to house in a farming district in Maryland, selling books for the purpose of earning money to pay his college expenses. Near the end of the day, overheated and thirsty, he called at a farmhouse and was met at the door by a bright, happy girl in her teens."

The visitor inquired of the young lady whether they would care to purchase some books, to which she answered, "My mother is a widow, and we have no money to buy books," whereupon the student asked whether she could give him a glass of cool water. Said she, "We have plenty of milk in the spring house. Would you care for a glass of nice cold milk instead?"

"Yes, I would," he replied, "if it is not much trouble." "No trouble at all," said the girl, running to the spring house. The thirsty student drank the cold milk thankfully. The girl then offered him another glass of milk, to which he replied, "I would enjoy it very much."

When he sought to pay her, the girl protested, "No, no." "Why not?" he inquired. "Well, my mother always taught us to be kind and hospitable to strangers, and that is what I am doing." The student thanked her and plodded on his way.

Several years passed, and one day, as the head of a hospital in which he performed operations, the one-time medical student, now a widely-known surgeon, was visiting the wards of the hospital when his eyes fell upon a face which he remembered well.

For he recognized in a moment his former benefactor, the girl who had given him a drink of cold milk on a hot summer day long ago. The girl was too sick to recognize anyone, but he knew her.

Things began to happen. Activity seemed to focus around the woman from the farm. She was moved into a private room, with nurses to wait on her, and everything known to medical science was brought to bear upon her condition. The chief surgeon, himself, took particular interest in her case.

After weeks of medical and surgical attention the patient recovered and was able to sit up in her room.

One day the nurse said, "You are going home tomorrow." "Oh, I am so glad," she responded, "but the cost of all this worries me - the bill must be very great." "I'll go get it," said the nurse, and soon she placed the bill in the patient's hand.

As the woman looked over the items on the bill and read the staggering cost of her operation and hospital care, she wept. "When will I ever get it paid!" she exclaimed. But when she read a little farther down, her eyes caught sight of eight words which dried her tears. The words were: "Paid in full by a glass of milk." - Howard A. Kelly, M.D.

The former young book agent and the great Dr. Kelly, already a surgeon of much repute, were one and the same.

Friendliness and cordiality are close kin to kindness, and make life more worth living for both the giver and the recipient.

I have another story to tell you that I believe you'll like very much.

Here it is:

"One fine spring day as I walked along the street, I came to a long, wide parking strip. Nasturtiums, nestling in

The Pirate's Echo is the brain child of editor, Chip Sandifer, who with aid of assistant editor, Sonya Williams, and the entire staff, made his second issue a sell-out.

The Pirate's Echo contains articles on educational, social, and sporting events, a fiction section, a gossip column, and a fun page. Faculty sponsors, Molly Bowles and Patti Struck, have charted the course for the third issue of The Pirate's Echo to be published Dec. 19.

a bed of fresh green foliage, covered the entire space like a Persian carpet - orange, yellow, red - of living beauty.

"Pausing, I stood there, lost in admiration. Then I saw a neatly painted sign: 'Stop and pick a bouquet.'"

Drawing a sharp breath, I looked about me in amazement. Who planted these beautiful flowers? Do they really mean it, I wondered, remembering gardens with forbidding signs on them. Still unbelieving, I looked for a house and the owner.

"Did you plant these flowers?" I asked, hesitantly. The man smiled warmly. "I did," he replied. "Right from seed, ma'am. I planted and cultivated that bit of garden spot myself." His pride was apparent. "Help yourself," he invited.

While I stooped and picked the fragrant blossoms, I found I had to question this man. "Isn't the privilege you offer sometimes abused?"

The man shook his head emphatically. "Never!" Then he told me more. It seemed that the flowers did much more than brighten the corner of a drab city lot.

The blossoms invited hurry, hustling, passers-by to stop, to be thrilled by a dazle of color and warmed by a stranger's unexpected generosity.

"This little bit of garden does even more for me," the man confided. "My friends were limited because I spend much of the day right here. Now I mingle with strangers who stop to say thanks, and then linger on to chat."

I've widened my interests and quickened my sense of being alive. This strip of blossoms is forever turning up a strange, new type - person you would never suspect had any interest in flowers at all," he chuckled.

"Perhaps they haven't," I nodded wisely. "Perhaps they pause to pay tribute to a person who is so friendly."

With sudden intensity, there came to me a new realization of the value of simple every day friendliness. In this instance, it took a small thing like garden seed and a welcoming sign to create a "parking strip of good-will." On the whole, as you pass along through life, you will find most people are naturally friendly, but many lack the simple opportunity to express themselves or they do not know how to take advantage of such opportunities."

We are not so different from one another. Circumstances, training, heredity casts us in dissimilar molds, yet we are all members of a common, struggling, human family. Approach a man with an honest desire to be friendly, and he will not misread your motives.

"Pick my flowers," invited this gracious, friendly man. "Come often, and bring others if you wish."

"Thank you," I returned gratefully.

"I was in a smiling, pleasant mood as I turned again on my way. Yes, I knew that I would return, if only to freshen my faith in the essential good will of man.

While this friendly, filling station man gave no sign of being friendly just to get business, the activity at his place of business was most noticeable.

During the 15 to 20 minutes that I lingered there, his helpers were busy servicing one car after another while he, like a gracious host, was greeting in the most friendly way all comers, including pedestrians like myself, who were buying nothing from him, as well as the customers of his business.

I liked these two little stories and I thought you might like them too.

'RIGHTS' PENDULUM BACKSWING

Mississippi farm families attending the 59th annual convention of the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation in Jackson Nov. 30 - Dec. 2 climbed aboard the 'rights' movement - but pumped their position on the backstroke side of the pendulum.

Essentially, voting delegates from all of Mississippi's counties endorsed the concept that, while they believe in and support total equality under the law for all legal residents in America as guaranteed by the Constitution, they likewise believe that the rights movement has gone too far - today depriving others of their rights.

They opposed special treatment for any group. The farm groups' policy statement was months in the making through a democratic decision-making process that allowed for county review of all recommendations before they were brought to the federation's annual meeting. Then delegates, chosen in proportion to membership by counties, ratified the overall policy statements which will govern the organization's public affairs activities for the next year.

The Farm Bureau delegates went on record supporting present constitutional guarantees pertaining to equal opportunity for all citizens. But they flagged a threat of going too far in the rights thing by pointing out that just as race, color, creed, or religion should not be used as a basis for denying opportunity, they must not be used to provide special treatment.

Special favors for some, the farmers said, deny due rights to others - regardless of whether these parties are majorities or minorities. The concept of racial quotas or preference was described as not only unjust, but a disservice to individual pursuit of excellence, being counterproductive in a competitive, free enterprise system.

It was recommended that farm people work toward abolition of such programs as 'affirmative action' and the various other programs which make racial distinctions a basis for special standards. On related subjects, the farm organization championed the family unit as the strength of every society, and urged that this nation adopt the definition of a family as a male and female united by God in holy matrimony living under the same roof with or without children (either by birth or legally adopted) and/or blood relatives living under the same roof.

GOODGOLF

Tips On A Low Score At A High Age
By Jay Hebert

Jay Hebert, touring pro and tournament winner for 37 years, has been commissioned by Standard Brands Incorporated to assist senior golfers by preparing these tips.

The only part of golf that you can buy is a set of clubs that has been properly fitted for you. Benefit from the experience of your professional and spend a little time with him on the practice tee before ordering your custom-made clubs.

The most important part of a golf club is the grip. Tour caddies clean their players' grips every day. Grips should be changed once a year and resurfaced to fit your hands. Wash grips with scouring powder. Restoring golf clubs is one of my favorite hobbies. MacGregor woods and Spalding irons 1950's and 1960's are real pearls. Check your attics and closets and have them regripped and refinished.

further advocated passage of legislation to make child custody and economic support of children as established by the Courts in one state legal and enforceable in all sister states.

The Equal Rights Amendment came under scrutiny and the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment was opposed as were appropriations of public funds to promote the ERA or granting additional time in the ratification campaign. And while the farm group urged reinstatement of the selective service registration system, or draft, they called for the drafting of men only.
